EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

CALIFORNIA excels not only in gold wheat, wool, fruit and wine, but also in her production of new potatoes.

WOULDN'T it be queer if the State of Texas should be carried by the Prohibitionists at the coming election?

IT is not often that Queen Victoria wears her royal robes, but she promises to do so on the occasion of her jubilee.

THERE will be no extra session of the legislature. If there had been no session at all the State would now be better off.

MR. CLEVELAND and Governor Hill have met at the executive mansion in Albany and the earth still moves tranquilly along in its orbit.

THE British Tories after a prolonged and stubborn struggle, will undoubtedly pass the Irish coercion bill. And then we shall see what we shall see.

YELLOW fever is spreading in Florida and people are leaving the State. They are all welcome to the North provided they do not bring the pestilence with them

THE General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, which is to hold its centennial meeting in Philadelphia next year, held its first meeting in that city in 1789.

THERE is said to be a perfect understanding between the President and Governor Hill. It will probably continue until each tries to get what the other wants.

IF Hattie Penzyres at Buffalo, N. Y., can save her neck by being hysterical, why should she not practice hysteria? The end would justify the means from her point of view.

MEN who gamble with cards, wheat, provisions or stocks occasionally make money, but as a rule the amateur gambler loses his investment and is often ruined. It safest not to gamble.

LAST year President Cleveland was a pronounced Randall man; this year he is a strong Carlisle man. Odds are offered that next year will find him an uncompromising Cleveland man.

BARCLAY PEAK, of Mt. Holly, has been found guilty of the death of Katie Anderson. The details of the crime and the trial are well known to all who take interest in such things and it is unnecessary to repeat them. The general opinion is that the verdict is a correct one.

THERE are new rumors to the effect that Senator Vance, of North Carolina, is preparing to make open war on the President's civil service policy, but people should not be in a hurry to believe them. Vance will have to find the President's civil service policy before making war upon it, and that is what nobody has been able to do up to this time.

DAN RICE, the showman, has been married in Schuylenburg, Texas, to Mrs. Robinson, a rich widow. Dan is quite a remarkable fellow and many reports are from time to time current respecting him. One, some time ago, was to the effect that he had become religious. Whether that is true or not, the report of his marriage is probably correct.

THE Rev. Dr. Talmage has declared that newspaper reporters are as honorable a body of men as can be found in the community—and he said it right there in Washington, almost within hearing of the temporary residence of the fat man who speaks about "the general lying" and ghoulish glee of the reporters. Hereafter Dr. Talmage and the Administration will probably never speak as they pass by.

SINCE the Bohemian oats swindle has been so thoroughly exposed, the rogues who have been manipulating it have thrown away that grain and taken up a new one. "Gold Dust Wheat" is the new fraud. It is sold at $10 per bushel, the seller agreeing to buy a certain amount of the product at $8 per bushel After their experience in the Bohemian oats line, no intelligent farmer should be taken in by this new piece of roguery.

Under Queen Victoria.

On the 20th day of this month Queen Victoria will have reigned fifty years. When she ascended to the throne she was only eighteen years of age.

The most interesting part of the history of Victoria's realm during the last fifty years is the progress of internal reform. Victoria's accession found Lord Melbourne's Whig ministry in office Its greatest achievement was the adoption of the penny postage proposed by Sir Rowland Hill. The average cost of postage before this change was 6½ pence (12½c).

About the same time the electric telegraph was invented simultaneously in England and United States and was adopted on land in both countries. Railways about the same time began to be generally built and the formation of companies progressed so rapidly as to lead to the railway panic of 1848. In 1838 the possibility of propelling ships by steam alone was proved by the voyage of the Great Western across the Atlantic and from that time the use of steam in ships became general.

During these earlier years the Chartist agitation spread among the working people. Most of the points of the charter have been gained. They are manhood suffrage, annual parliaments, abolition of the property qualification for members of Parliament, vote by ballot, payment of members and the division of the country into equal electoral districts.

During the Conservative (as the Tories are now called) administration of Peel the work of women and children in mines was forbidden and laws were passed requiring factory children to work only half-time providing for their compulsory education. The Rebecca riots in Wales, during which the tollgates were broken down, compelled the abolition of many oppressive tolls on the high roads.

It was in 1836 that the Anti-Corn Law League was formed and the Free Trade movement began under the leadership of Richard Cobden. It was a movement of town against country, the townspeople demanding cheap bread and the country people fearing the end of English agriculture. The Free Trade contest was waged bitterly and it was not until 1852 that the opponents of the Cobden idea finally admitted defeat.

The Tory government, in 1857, passed a reform bill, extending the electoral franchise. It gave a vote to every occupier of a house worth $1 per week. In 1859 the Hebrews were granted the right to sit in Parliament.

In 1885 Gladstone passed the law assimilating the borough and county franchise, thus giving the vote to about $5,000,000 persons or one in seven of the population. At the same time the parliamentary seats were redistributed according to population,

Education and the condition of working people have made great advancement under her gracious reign.

At the beginning of the present reign Ireland had been lately granted two instalments of justice, Catholic emancipation and the commutation of the tithes. She still demanded others. Home Rule, just land laws, disestablishment of the church of the minority and secular education. The agitation for these reforms has been continued under circumstances usually adverse in the extreme and calling for leaders who held principle to be of higher value than life. One by one concessions have been wrung from Parliament; a majority of the English-speaking people of the world has been brought to see the justice of Ireland's claims, and Home Rule is finally in sight.

BISHOP STEVENS, who died in Philadelphia a few days ago, was one of the most distinguished men in the Protestant Episcopal church. He belonged to what is known as the Low Church part of that church, though, we are told, as he became older he became more tolerant. This is usually the way. As men increase in age and wisdom they see the utter folly of narrow views on religious subjects. They perceive more certainly the essentials of Christian faith and so intense is their desire to have men embrace the essentials of salvation that they are willing to give up minor differences.

KENTUCKY'S diamond fields have been dissipated by the light of scientific investigation. Kentucky is all right on such superficial subjects as fast horses, beautiful women and good whiskey, but in the profound depths of mineralogy the Blue Grass State is not to be relied on.

Republican Convention.

The time and place for holding the Republican State Convention was agreed upon by correspondence with all of the members of the State Committee. Chairman Cooper has therefore issued the following call:

HEADQUARTERS REPUBLICAN STATE COMMITTEE,
Philadelphia, June 9,'87.

The Republican State Convention will be held in the Opera House at Harrisburg, on the third Wednesday of August, the 17th, 1887, at 10 o'clock, a. m., for the purpose of nominating candidates for State Treasurer and Judge of the Supreme Court, and for the transaction of other business.

The attention of Republicans throughout the State is respectfully directed to the following Permanent Rules for the holding of State Conventions and the conduct of the party.

FIRST. That Delegates to the State Convention shall be chosen in the manner in which candidates for the General Assembly are nominated.

SECOND. Hereafter the State Conventions of the Republican Party shall be held not earlier than the third Wednesday of August, except in the year of the Presidential election, when it shall be held not more than thirty days previous to the day fixed for the National Convention, and except in Gubernatorial years. At least sixty days notice shall be given of the date of the State Convention.

THIRD. That we recommend to the county organizations, that in their rules they allow the largest freedom in the general participation in the primaries consistent with the preservation of the party organization.

The State Convention of June 30th, 1886, having abolished Senatorial representation, Delegates to the approaching State Convention will be selected according to the number of Representatives in the Legislature to which each county or city is entitled under the Representative Apportionment law passed at the recent session of the Legislature.

THOS. V. COOPER,
Chairman.

Pennsylvania for Blaine.

General Negley, of Pittsburg, who has served a number of terms in Congress, is positive that Pennsylvania will declare again for Blaine in 1888. The General is quoted as saying:

Mr. Blaine will receive the solid delegation from my State in 1888. It is his native State, and his popularity is very great. All the other candidates in the field are mere negatives. Mr. Blaine, in my opinion, will accept the nomination; it is a great honor, one that none can refuse. Then I fully believe that Mr. B. desires to run again more to vindicate himself than anything else. He lost the election before by treachery from his own party. A combination of circumstances worked against him all the way through, and even then his defeat was so close, the result could have been changed by a few hundred votes. But Mr. Blaine's popularity is not confined to the limits of my State the West is strong for him and he can count on the support of the people. Mr. Blaine will go to the convention in 1888 with almost a unanimous delegation. The opposition to him will be fragmentary and not organized. The other candidates have no such splendid organization as the Plumed Knight, and their efforts in the convention will be more in the nature of spasmodic attempts than well directed and cohesive work. The result will be that he will sweep everything before him. Some Republicans rise up and cry for new blood, young blood and the like, but not until such men as Blaine and John Sherman pass off the scene will young blood come to the front. I think Senator Sherman is making himself stronger by his recent speeches. He never says anything that has not the true ring in it. He is aggressive and knows how to push his opponents of the opposite party to the wall.

CADET William Findley Shunk, of Harrisburg, carries off the highest honors of the graduating class at West Point Military Academy. He is the son of William F. Shunk, Esq., a distinguished civil engineer, and he has inherited his qualities from a good lineage For his grand-father was Governor Francis R. Shunk and his great-grandfather was Governor William Findley. Cadet Shunk, graduating at the head of his class, will be commissioned as a Second Lieutenant of the Corps of Engineers, from which many of the best commanders in the late Civil War were obtained. For the head of a graduating class, although entitled to a commission in the Engineers, is a complete soldier, fitted for any branch of the service. This young Pennsylvanian will give a good account of himself in any duty he may be called on to perform.

A Great Gun Ruined.

A recent dispatch from Washington says: Just as the first of the new ten-inch steel rifle cannon was receiving the finishing touches an accident has occurred which will in all probability cause the ruin of the gun and the entire loss of months of skillful labor. The guns, which are being constructed at the naval arsenal here, are exceedingly delicate pieces of machinery, in spite of their apparent weight. They are turned to the thickness of a hair, and everything about them is gauged as accurately as the works of a watch. The guns have excited the admiration of mechanics and laymen alike by the perfection to which they have been brought. Now it appears that while the workmen were engaged upon the last cut in the rifling process early this week the tool used for boring broke off, and up to date the combined mechanical genius of the mechanics of the arsenal have been unable to repair the damage. The workmen to whose carelessness the accident is due have been discharged.

THERE can be no doubt that, important as is the Revenue Bill, an extra session of the Legislature, for the purpose of passing it over again would cost nearly as much as it would gain. For, if the members are paid $500 and mileage, although the extra session might not require more than a week's time, the cost would absorb a large portion of the first year's revenue under the new law. In this respect Pennsylvania has had some recent and dearly bought experience, and it would seem that nothing but the salvation of the Commonwealth would justify the Governor in summoning the Legislature to the capitol. And it would seem as if Gov. Beaver takes this view of the matter, and is cutting down appropriations so as to reduce to a minimum the evil resulting from this neglect.—Tyrone Herald.

A REUNION of the 116th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, will be held in McClellan's Opera House, Gettysburg, on Saturday, July 2d, at noon. Major J. W. Yocum, editor of the Columbia Spy, has charge of the matter, and is preparing a roster of the survivors, as their names and addresses are furnished. The regiment will spend July 2d, 3d and 4th, in the old historic town, and they will meet the survivors of Pickett's gallant division of Virginians, who made the memorable charge in their front, on the third day of the battle. Survivors are requested to address J. W. Yocum, Columbia, Pa.

WHILE there is no particular reason why the American people should participate in the celebration of the jubilee of Queen Victoria, because we have no use for kings or queens, yet we can recognize the good heart of the excellent woman who for half a century has occupied the English throne. As a ruler she has been and is a mere figure-head, without half the power possessed by the President of the United States As a wife and mother she has been a model to her sex, adorning the name of woman.

THE President's vacation is ended. The anglers at Saranac lake are not pleased with the President's method of fishing for trout. They say he uses a worm bait when no artistic trout angler would fish with other bait than a fly, which requires the greatest skill. There is still another criticism they express which we forget just now. It is clear that if the President did gain some sunburn by his vacation, he did not heighten the respect in which he is held by the frequenters of Saranac Lake.

IT IS not likely that the Governor will make any appointment at present to fill the vacancy on the Supreme bench caused by the death of Judge Mercur. It is thought that the nominee for the office by the State Convention will be the man he will appoint. And it looks as if Judge Williams, of Tioga County, would be the man. He is the strongest candidate in the field at present, and his strength is likely to increase instead of diminish.

PHILADELPHIA'S great boom for a grand Fourth of July celebration is getting on famously and there are indications that the Quaker City will teach the State, this year, how Independence day ought to be celebrated.

A Grave Danger.

When we read that 3,000 men, women and children attended an anarchist picnic at Gutenberg, N. J., we are impressed with the idea that there are more of those blood-thirsty individuals in the United States than we at first had any idea of. And when we read that they attacked a man merely because he came among them carrying an American flag instead of a red one, we are alarmed at the dangerous character of their anarchism. The increasing number of these lawless citizens is a warning that their importation from other countries should not be placed on the free list. They come in competition to a serious extent with loyal, law-abiding citizens.

We suppose that it was the desire of corporations for cheap labor which first gave rise to the trade in such foreigners. Now, if they turn again and destroy the very agencies which plotted to bring them here it will be punishment justly inflicted. But the innocent are likely, in such an event, to suffer with the guilty. What has been done cannot be undone, but it is possible to prohibit the importation of such creatures. We do not raise them in this country, and we certainly have no use for them.

There are laws against the importation of yellow-fever or cholera. Why should there not be the same prohibition against anarchists? Such creatures are more dangerous than any disease possibly could be.

Base Ball Collision.

On Monday an accident occurred on the base ball ground, in a distant town, which resulted in injuring two of the players, one being hurt perhaps fatally. The men were not struck by a bat or a ball, or did not trip up over the home plate and break a leg. No, the account reads that each was so intent on catching a ball that they came together with a terrific shock.

The game of base ball is a glorious one and elicits the most earnest enthusiasm of Young America. It is, in fact, the National game, and we would not exchange it for any game on this sphere. But it is not well to become too much wrapt up in anything. We can imagine that the two players were entirely oblivious to everything else. All they could see and all they cared for in this world was that wonderful ball sailing through the air and descending so beautifully. As a consequence, they collided and we suppose the ball continued on its course to the earth. The very intensity of their enthusiasm caused them to miss the object of all their endeavors.

A LETTER from Washington says: "The infantry and artillery arms of the service have long had encampments in the District, but the cavalry branch of the service has been kept busy on the frontier. It is the intention of Gen. Sheridan to station two cavalry companies here to take part in official parades. The recent competitive drill so much pleased the commanding general, that he has determined to use his efforts to have Congress make an appropriation for an annual drill to be held at Washington under the supervision of officers of the regular army. Such a drill would doubtless be effective in promoting the efficiency and esprit du corps of the many volunteer organizations throughout the country and it would doubtless keep in training an effective and well equipped small army that would respond promptly in the hour of need. It is against the genius of our institutions and the policy of our government to maintain a large standing army, but as a prudential measure we will do well to keep alive the military habit and spirit."

AN act of the last session of the legislature, called the Married Woman's Property Act, places such women in just as advantageous position as if they were men, in their ability to hold and dispose of property and enter into business transactions. Some people may consider that their new position is even better, for we observe that section 2 forbids a married woman from becoming accommodation, indorser, guarantor or surety for another.

COFFEE appears to have reached the topmost notch and in the closing days of last week the price began to drop. This will be splendid news for some excellent people who had just about come to the conclusion to cut the acquaintance of their favorite beverage. May the decline continue until a reasonable price is reached.

Poetry.

MARY AND HER DUDE.

Mary had a little dude,
An airy, brainless fellow,
Whose manners were aesthetic quite,
Whose bangs were golden yellow.
It followed her to school one day,
Kid gloves, tight pants and all;
The little children marveled much
At Mary's pet dude's gall.

It dallied round about the green
Until the hour of four,
When merry laugh of school-boy told
That school, at last, was o'er.
With pleasure keen it heard the fall
Of Mary's number nine,
A feeling strong akin to love
Crept up the dudelet's spine.

And homeward Mary led the thing,
Much as she'd tote a pup,
And when the girl would forge ahead
The dude would amble up.
The children asked what made the dude
"Chase Mary like a poodle?"
A small boy shouted out in glee,
"Cos Mary's Pa's got boodle."

* * * * * *

Mary's pa possessed a dog,
A dull of grit and power,
Who fashioned all his strange exploits
Unto the varying hour.

* * * * * *

Soon Mary reached the cottage door,
The dude, oh, where was he?
Ask of the bull who sized it up,
And set his mistress free.

ALL IS PAST.

The days are passing swiftly by,
The nights are passing, too;
All things are passing—all save I,
My dear old pass, on you.

I've traveled on thee many a league,
O'er rivers, streams and hills,
Nor knew I once the least fatigue
In crossing plains or hills.

For thou wert ever by my side—
What need had I for care?
But now I never more shall ride,
Unless I pay my fare.

My curse shall follow everywhere
The I. S. Commerce bill;
And may the man who drew it share
Its poison to his fill!

Oh! may he never, never know
The joy of riding free,
But tramp this country to and fro
Through all eternity.

And if that man I ever meet,
What ecstasy I'll feel
In seeing him limp on blistered feet
And hop on festered heel.

Adieu, old friend, for you're called in;
Our fate we must obey,
Go back to him who gave thee me—
The genial G. P. A,

Our Story Teller.

BERTHA'S BUTTERCUPS.

She had a corner seat in the big room with a table all to herself, and an outlook over a wilderness of blistering tin roofs and smoke blackened chimney stacks, and made bunches on bunches of buttercups. They had specialties in this factory, and Miss Smith had found herself to excel in the manufacture of buttercups, so that thenceforward it was decided that she should devote herself entirely to this particular branch of the profession. Miss Smith never spoke to anyone No one knew where she spent her Sundays, nor in what nook o rcorner of the great city she lodged herself. She worked quietly on, apparently quite absorbed in her own thoughts, until one day an order came for a whole field full of buttercups. Signorina Bettina, the star actress, was to appear at the Globe in her favorite piece of "Gretchen, the Farmer's Daughter." She was to sing her much applauded song of 'Yellow Buttercups,' while occupied in gathering that ideal flower in a field with her swain at one end of it and the cow and the milk stool at the other. And Signorina Bettina had declared that she should not sing a note unless she was surrounded by real buttercups. She was so dependent, she said, upon illusions. The Signorina herself drove down to the factory in the coupe, which was a part of her contract with the manager, personally to superintend the matter. She nodded approval when she saw a specimen of Miss Smith's art. She sat down in a friendly, unceremonious way to talk to the pale girl.

Miss Smith's eyes lighted up—a round spot of color came to each cheek The two women found themselves each interested in the other at once, over the varnished yellow petals of the buttercups.

"I have always longed to know a real actress," said Miss Smith, fervently.

"Good! but you are also a genius in your way," said the Signorina. "I will give you an order of admission for the first night. No one can make such flowers as these unless she has within her the soul of an artist. And you must also come to see me at my hotel and make the acquaintance of my good husband. He, also is a genius. He plays the trombone. If it were not for absurd jealousies he would be leader of the orchestra."

So the Signorina Bettina and Miss Smith became fast friends, to the infinite envy, hatred and malice of the other 60 or 70 girls.

"But, my dear," said the Signorina to Miss Smith—they call her the "Signorina" still, although she was 40 and had been married to Herr Waldberg, of the orchestra these 18 years, possibly because it looked better on the bills—"I cannot understand it all why you should be here alone, unfriendly, toiling day by day. Ah, my dear, you have a story. All women have. You shall confide in me about the lover."

Miss Smith had been captivated by the actress' warm, cordial sweetness of manner, no less than by her genius. She answered frankly. "It is not much of a story," said she. "Oh, yes," her eyes falling before the Signorina's searching glance. "I had a lover, but I ran away from him!"

"Ah, to listen to the child!" said the Signorina. "It is the other way mostly. The lovers they run away from us. But I interrupt you. A thousand pardons! Pray proceed. What could have induced you to run from him?"

"It wasn't that I did not love him," said Miss Smith, speaking in a low voice and downcast eyes. "But—he had a chance to leave home and do better. And he would not do it because of me. We were engaged. And his mother said it was a millstone around his neck and, a clog upon his hopes. There was a rich girl that liked him—that he might have liked if he had never seen me, you know—"

"Ah, what a monster she was, that mother!" tragically cried the Signorina.

"She spoke harshly," said Miss Smith, "but perhaps she spoke the truth. So I knew that I was behaving selfishly, and I ran away from him."

"These American girls, they pass my comprehension," said the Signorina, rolling her eyes heavenward. "Child, do you know that you are a heroine?"

"I tried to do what was right and best," said Miss Smith, "although it was very hard."

"And did he marry the other—the rich girl, I mean?" asked the Signorina.

"I don't know; I suppose so. I came to New York to lose myself then I changed my name. I have never dared to make inquiries. It would have betrayed me, don't you see?"

"Smith, then, is not your real name?"

"No—oh, no!" said the girl. "My real name is Bertha Hooper."

"I see," nodded the Signorina, "It is too characteristic to keep. Smith—everyone is Smith. My child you have not done amiss."

So the first night of the "New Specular Attraction" arrived, and from her corner in the gallery Miss Smith saw her buttercups glistening like drops of gold in the mossy fluff that represented a grassy meadow, and she heard Gretchen sing the favorite song that brought out the tears and pocket handkerchiefs, simultaneously, of the audience. She cried herself. It all seemed real.

At the end of the piece a call boy came up to her. The Signorina was in her dressing room.

The Signorina wanted to see the young lady. And shaking off, with some difficulty, the atmosphere of unrealism that surrounded her like a dream, Miss Smith followed the lad. They were shifting the scenery as she passed the flies making ready for the gay little farce which was to follow the great drama. Men bustled here and there; directions were issued in muffled voices, a curious smell of fresh paint pervaded everything. Miss Smith paused. There was something in this odor of paint that recalled old associations to her. Her lover had been an artist, and the subtle perfume of his studio had once been to her sweeter than the gales of Araby the blest.

"This way, miss," said the call boy, officiously.

And as Miss Smith turned the corner of a bower of dazzling roses, behind which a fat brigand was supposed to lurk, she soon came face to face with the chief scene painter who stood talking with the manager.

"John," she cried out with a little gasp. Surely, surely she was not dreaming? All this could not be true.

"Why, it's Bertha Hooper," cried the chief scene painter, dropping the mahl stick with which he had been gesticulating, and turned pale.

Perhaps it was the smell of paint, perhaps the stifled air of wings, perhaps the nervous pitch to which poor Miss Smith's nature had that night been attuned—no one knew exactly why it was, but Miss Smith certainly fainted then and there; and if the chief scene painter had not caught her in his arms she would have fallen to the floor.

"Good," said the Signorina. "Love is not so capricious, after all, as he it painted. Ah, my dear child! and so is is all right, in spite of your obstinacy. He loved you, did he? He would not marry the other girl? He came to New York to look for you? And after all these ten years of trial and constancy you met face to face, and all through me! Come, kiss me, little girl. Do you know that you are pretty after all? Your eyes sparkle, your cheeks are like roses. Ah, I do not wonder that John Campton would not give you up. And you are to be married from my lodgings, little one—do you hear that? As I my husband, the kind Herr, shall give you away, and in your hand you shall carry, not the idotic orange blossoms—which all fools aspire after, simply because they are the fashion—but a bunch of yellow buttercups. Eh? shall it not be so?"

And Miss Smith smiled, with a secret, far-off look in her eyes, and said that it should be as the Signorina pleased. She did not care, nothing mattered very much to her now that she was sure that John loved her—that he had been true to her all these years.

Bill Nye.

Bill Nye in New York World.

I went into a low-price barber shop a week ago and began to save $30 for the purpose of adding to my library. I soon discovered that in a five cent barber shop you get less consideration and a lower grade of lather up your nose than elsewhere.

I believe that the man that shaves you for five cents makes his own soap. Possibly he works up some of his fattest patrons that way. Anyhow, the soap he uses smells badly and tastes worse than any soap I have ever participated in. At this price of shave one saves financially, but he loses cutaneously.

The chair I sat in was not a good easy chair, and the spiral springs in it occasionally had to come to the surface for air. I became very much attached to one of the springs, and the ten cents I saved on the shave I had to pay a tailor down town who trepanned my trousers for me.

The chair was also mentally a wreck, and its memory was failing, I thought, Just as I would relax my muscles and close my eyes this tottering old chair would forget itself, and the worn out trigger that held the head rest would slip about nine cogs. Then with a low deathlike rattle it would fall about a foot and disturb my intellectual faculties. You can get shaved quicker for five cents than you can for fifteen, but the towels are more clammy and the bay rum is rather more of a chestnut, I judge.

Suffice it that I am not going to continue the course of economy that I had inaugurated for the year, for I am opposed to the hoarding and accumulating of a surplus. Money is tending too much toward centralization anyway, and I do not want to encourage it.

While I may not be able to secure the books which I contemplated buying with my savings, I can visit the Chamber of Horrors at the Musee and improve my mind in such ways by actual observation.

We do not get all our education from books. We may easily obtain many refining and ennobling ideas from other sources than the musty tomes which decorate the shelves of our libraries.

One of the brainiest men I ever knew, if I may be allowed the temporary use of that term, a man too, who had succeeded in amassing quite a fortune as a result of a native shrewdness and knowledge of human nature, once admitted to me in a sudden burst of confidence, inspired perhaps by too much wine, that he had never read either of my books. And yet he had concealed this gross ignorance for over five years and amassed a fortune. While this is a sad commentary on American galvanized illiteracy, it still shows that a man may be almost criminally ignorant in this country and yet acquire scads.

Health Hints.

For hiccough—Hold the breath.

For despondency—Take a swallow of vinegar.

For inflammatory rheumatism—Eat one or two raw onions, daily.

For diarrhœa—Take boiled milk and castor oil, also brandy and raw eggs.

For any form of kidney difficulty, a tea made of peach leaves is a sure cure.

To disinfect a house, fumigate by burning sulphur or tar; then whitewash and paint.

Eye water—For inflammed eyes use the juice of the strawberry after being strained and settled.

A vegetable acid, such as lemon juice, or cider, is said to be a sure specific for most cases of scarlet fever.

A mote may be removed from the eye, or the pain at least alleviated, by putting a grain of flaxseed under the lid.

A tea made of chestnut leaves, and drank in the place of water, is said to have cured many obstinate cases of dropsy.

A tea made of ripe or dried whortleberries, and drank in the place of water, is a speedy cure for many forms of scrofulous difficulties.

Turpentine, in doses of twenty or thirty minims, will not only remove the headache, but produce, in a wonderful manner, a soothing influence.

Oil of cinnamon will cause the disappearance of worts, however hard, large or dense they may be. The application gives rise to neither pain nor suppuration.

When the nose threatens to bleed excessively, it can sometimes be arrested by putting the feet in hot water, or by applying a mustard plaster between the shoulders.

Home, Sweet Home.

Dr. Charles Mackay says that Sir Henry Bishop assured him that he composed the music of "Home, Sweet Home" in early manhood for Messrs. Goulding and D'Almaine, who were publishing a series of national melodies of all countries. The words were by Mr. Howard Payne, an American then resident in England. A "Sicilian melody" was wanted, and as Sir Henry was unable to find one, he composed 'Home, Sweet Home" and passed it off as Sicilian. Several other publishers, thinking that it really was Sicilian, and not copyright, pirated the music, and a series of actions ensued. Sir Henry Bishop deposed on oath to the facts above mentioned, and Messrs. Goulding and D'Almaine obtained nominal damages. This statement is clear and explicit, and should set at rest a long disputed question. As the song is equally popular on both sides of the Atlantic, it is fitting that an American and an Englishman should have been conjoined in its production.—London Christian World.

Odd Names of Flowers.

London Saturday Review.

How many children who sing
Mary! Mary! quite contrary,
How does your garden grow?
Cockle shells and silver bells,
And pretty maids all of a row,

are aware that the "pretty maids" are the double form of a common garden plant, saxifraga granulata, which is also known as "Billy Button" and 'lady's pincushion?' As to "silver bells" we believe that we may add a contribution here, for this was the name familiar to ourselves in childhood as one of the Devonshire titles of the doddering grass, briza media. As cockle shells are certainly periwinkles (vinca major), it follows that Maiden Mary, instead of the ridiculous garden which foolish artists draw for her, full of real shells, and little girls and silver bells had a very pretty parterre of delicate and appropriate blossoms. Among the numerous stores of things not generally known with which this fascinating dictionary abounds there is a note of commendable fullness on the word "shamrock." It appears that it is the yellow clover, trifolium minus, which is commonly sold as shamrock in Covent Garden on St. Patrick's day, and in most parts of Ireland. The poet Spenser, in a passage which has been often quoted, says that when the starving Irish "found a plot of water-cresses, or shamrocks, there they flocked as to a feast for a time." Holinshed, Speed Campion and Wither, are all quoted as meaning water-cresses when they speak of shamrocks; but here again dubiousness steps in, because all these writers are suspected of meaning wood sorrel, oxalis acetosella, when they speak of water-cresses. Gerard, the herbalist thought that the true shamrock was trifolium pratense, the meadow clover, and Tancred Robinson gave the same information to Ray. There seems to be great confusion as to the true herb in the Irish mind itself.

Did He Grasp the Idea?

Williston Fish, in Puck.

Time—11.30 p. m.

She (yawning)—Yes?

He (a new-laid graduate who feels like being almost prodigally generous with his time, in order to partially compensate the young woman for what she has lost in not being "one of the fellows," now getting his second conversational wind in good shape)—Oh, it was really one of the biggest feeds we had all the time we were there! And it was at that very supper, if you believe it, that we made the change in the crew. You know the way it was before—Dawkins was eight, Bates was seven, Chill Ballard was six—how's that? No, Chill was five and Chunk Wesson was six; Johnnie Long, from Chicago, was four—a rattlin' good four he was, too; Printer was three, Pullman was stroke, and yours truly was two. And at this feed, you know, they said I must do stroke. You could have knocked me silly with a feather (not to say that the fizz had anything to do with that). When they said I was to do stroke, I said—

She—And did you take stroke?

He (who wants to work in all the details)—Why, yes, I did; but at first, you know—

She (enthusiastically)—Oh, I know you made a success!

He—Kind of you, sure! But, why do you think—

She (being a villain while she smiles)—You have such simply superb staying powers.

Too Particular Even for Boston.

Boston Record.

A Beacon street dame of high degree employed a new waitress last week. Yesterday the maid came to her with announcement: "I must leave you, ma'am."

"Why, Mary," said the mistress, "I thought you had engaged to go to Newport with me next month."

"Yes, ma'am, but I can't stay in this house till ye go. It's altogether too filthy dirty."

"My house dirty!" cried the lady. "How dare you say such a thing?"

"It's true, then, ma'am; it's a filthy dirty house, and I'm not used to livin' in such a place, and I'm not agoin' to stop."

"Come up stairs with me," commanded they lady; at the top of the flight—

"Now you may begin to show me where you find filth in my house."

"Here, ma'am," said the maid, walking into the dressing-room of the mistress.

"Look at them faucets. I can't stop in such a place. They are nothing but plated, and the silver's all a-wearin' off of them."

Mame and Sadie.

"Why, Mame, is this you?"

"Why, Sadie—is it possible?"

"How did you happen to get the seat next to mine?"

"I don't know, really. Brother Jack got the seat for me."

"How perfectly lovely!"

"Oh, perfectly so!"

"I've just been wondering who would sit next to me; and to think its you!"

"I'm ever so glad"!

"I'm more than glad. And I've a whole pound of caramels."

And I've marshmallows in this package."

"How lovely!"

"It's too lovely to think of our having seats right together."

I've dozens of things to tell you."

And I you. And I don't care a bit for this old concert."

"Nor I. I only came because everybody else did, and because Madame Screamer is to wear two new costumes."

"Is she? How lovely! I'm so glad I came."

"So am I—particularly since you're here.

"How good of you to say so."

"I've been counting the new spring bonnets."

"Have you. I counted nearly one hundred at our church yesterday."

"There are more than that here today. And some of them are just lovely. I'll show you where they are. There's one at the end of the first row on the left side in the dress circle.

"Isn't it lovely?"

"Perfectly so!"

"Yes; and there comes Madame Screamer. How do you like her costume?"

"Do you like it?"

"No; not much."

"I think it is horrid."

"So do I. Do take some more caramels."

"I will if you take more of my marshmallows."

"Let us not stay any longer."

"Very well. We'll go out and look at the new bonnets in Madame Flower's windows."

"That'll be lovely."

"So it will."

And they go.

Which is "too lovely" for all who sat within fifteen feet of them.

She Took Back Her Gift.

It was 10 p. m. In the friendly shadow of the veranda stood Cornelius McStabb and Samantha Cracraft. He was trying to control the wild beating of his heart and hid the tremor in his voice.

"Samantha," he said, as he swallowed something that seemed to be a cannonball in his heart, "many years ago, when you was a little girl, you made me a present. It was but a trifle, perhaps, in your estimation, but it has increased in value a thousand-fold, and I now treasure that little present as the most priceless thing in the world. Its possession all these years, Samantha, has become a burden on my conscience. I feel that I am doing wrong to keep it longer. It belongs to you. You may may not have missed it. You may never have realized its worth, but I feel it to be a duty to give it back to you and ease my conscience of the load it has carried for so many years. You will receive it, will you not, and forgive me for having kept it so long?"

"Centainly, Cornelius," replied Samantha. "If it is a burden on your conscience I will take it back, though I don't remember of ever having given you any such present. What was it?"

The conscience-stricken Cornelius McStabb swallowed another cannon ball and said with deep contrition:

"It was a kiss, Samantha!"

The wandering breeze, as it swept softly through the veranda, bore on its voiceless way the widening waves of the scarce audible sound that marked the impact with which Samantha Cracraft took the little gift back, after so many years, from the repentent young man.—Armtiston (Ark.) Hot Blast.

His Pretentions Taken Down.

A professor in a New York medical college called the attention of his class to a man who had applied for medical advice.

"Now, gentlemen," said the professor, "will you be kind enough to look at this patient closely, and see if you can tell what is really the matter with him. Look at his eyes, the shape of his head, the expression of his features.

"You detect nothing, and I do not wonder at it, for, gentlemen, let me assure you that it requires many years of actual experience. It takes the eye of the practical physician to detect at a glance the malady of the patient.

"I am no more acquainted with this man than you are, yet as soon as I looked at him I saw that he was a deaf mute."

The students indulged in exclamations of admiration. As soon as these had subsided the supposed deaf mute opened his mouth and spoke:

"I say, boss, I hope you will excuse me, but it is my brother who is deaf and dumb. He is outside waiting to know if he shall come in. Shall I fetch him in?"

All Sorts.

An Albany girl has had her photographs taken in fourteen different attitudes. That girl must certainly have had the fidgets.

Employer—"Young man you don't know beans!" Employe—"Don't be incautious in your statements, sir. I came here from a coffee factory."

A letter addressed to a party in "Father, Mich.," was sent to a post office expert, and he forwarded it to Paw Paw, Mich. He guessed right.

An Irish magistrate asked a prisoner if he was married. "No," replied the man. "Then," said his worship, amid peals of laughter, "it's a good thing for your wife."

JUDGE GORDON will succeed Judge Mercur as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. He is a native of Union county, and at one time practiced law in Clearfield county.

Editors may be passionate and excitable, but they rarely throw a diamond-studded paper weight at an objectionable spring poet if there happens to be any loose chair legs laying around.

"How's times?" asked the Moon. "Oh, I manage to keep even," replied the Equinox; "how do you get on this year?" "Oh, I'm the same old Rounder," said the Moon, and she went on round.

Earache—Take a bit of cotton-batting, put upon it a pinch of black pepper, gather it up and tie it, dip it in sweet oil, and insert it in the ear. Put a flannel bandage over the head to keep it warm. It will give immediate relief.

Any kind of a bath, or any other process that will produce a general perspiration, and thus bring about a reaction, will cure a cold. Simply inhaling fresh air largely by deep inspirations, is sufficient to nip an incipient cold in the bud.

Some foolhardy people are building a boat in which they intend to shoot the Niagara rapids. Now if somebody will only get a gun and shoot these foolhardy people much labor and expense would be saved and the world rid of a few cranks.

The very simple remedy of common salt has cured many cases of fever and ague. A teaspoonful taken in water, and a teaspoonful deposited inside each stocking, next to the foot, as the chill is coming on. This comprises the whole of the treatment.

"The principal business of the farmer at this season is blowing," was what the farmer read, and when he got mad and went to the editor to have his paper stopped, he found that the original item had read plowing, but the compositor had changed the first letter.

Cure for dandruff—Make a preparation of one ounce of flour of sulphur and one quart of water, agitate the mixture at frequent intervals for a few hours, then pour off the clear liquid, and saturate the head with this every morning. In a few weeks every trace of the dandruff will disappear, and the hair will become soft and glossy.

A little Comstock girl has brought home from the garden of a neighbor some pansies in full bloom, which she was carefully planting and watering in a patch of ground in front of her mother's door. "Think they'll do anything?" said a gentleman who was passing. "Yes, sir," said the child, "I guess they will, soon as they get a little acquainted."

Toothache.—If the cavity is so great as to allow the air to reach the nerve, get some spirits of nitre and mix with alum; saturate a little cotton with it and apply it to the cavity. If the pain extends upward to the eye, or takes the form of neuralgia, procure some horseradish leaves, take out the stems, wet them and apply on the face over the pain. This will generally bring relief.

To cure felons.—If at any time before suppuration commences, plenty of ice water is used, it will never fail in producing a perfect cure. Hold the affected part in ice cold water as long as it can be borne, withdraw it for a rest and repeat. Keep up this process for half a day, if necessary. It will at last overcome the inflammation, and that is all there is of a felon in its first stages.

Overproduction.

"Don't you think, Mr. Bluemarck," asked Miss Daisygirl, sweetly "that poets are born?"

"Too many of 'em are," groaned the editor, "too many of 'em are;" and with a withering look he scratched out nine stanzas of an Ode to J. T. on Seeing Her Swing in a Hammock at M—— May, 1887," twisted the remaining four into a misfit sonnet and said wearily to the waiting foreman:

"Put it somewhere under Crash and Linen's cut; folks'll think it's part of the ad."

—W. A. Hartsock, who lives near Martha, this county, is a model farmer and has a model farm. A look at his handsome well-kept place is sufficient to inspire the heart of any agriculturist and the State Board of Agriculture might have visited his place with benefit, as they could have found no better specimen of successful farming in Centre county. Mr. Hartsock goes on year after year raising abundant crops of all kinds, always having success, and gaining therefrom a good profit. Consequently, he does not complain of lack of success and doubtless considers Centre county the garden spot of the United States. Last summer Mr. Hartsock erected a barn and this summer he put up a new house, which are handsome, substantial structures. We might mention the different varieties of crops which Mr. Hartsock cultivates so successful, but what impressed us with greatest admiration were the broad fields of splendid oats. He also has a large number of bees which are busy these summer days laying up stores of sweetness. He combines wise management with manual toil to contribute to the handsome results.

—A labor demonstration is talked of, to be held in Philipsburg on the Fourth of July. We hope the laboring men, if they do demonstrate, will be wise enough not to imposed on by free-trade orators, who are roaming about the country in the service of England, watching for opportunity to take advantage of such occasions. Robert P. Porter, in his most recent letter from Free Trade England, says that the rate of mortality among the children of working people in London is five times greater than among children of the same ages in the upper classes. It is because the parents do not earn enough to support life. The free trade orators would have American working people reduced to the same extreme of poverty.

—It is acknowledged by everybody in the county that Mr. John C. Henderson, the Republican commissioner, is one of the most enterprising and progressive of citizens. His home is near Julian Furnace, and the same evidences of push and thrift are visible at his home that characterize all he does. A representative of this paper had the pleasure of visiting the energetic commissioner at his home the other day and was most agreeably entertained. The commissioner is also extremely fortunate in the fact that he has a most excellent wife and two charming daughters. The business of the county can most safely be entrusted to the man who attends to his own affairs with care and success. This Mr. Henderson does.

The Langtry Kiss.

Mrs. Langtry has invented a kiss that, according to the Chicago Mail, double discounts anything of the kind ever attempted by Emma Abbott. As Lady Clancarty her husband escapes from his pursuers through an open window into her room. She stands with her back to the audience clear down the stage, near the footlights. The husband looks at her a moment and rushes wildly into her arms. Then both swing around and expose their profiles to the audience. Then they hold each other at arm's length. Then her bosom heaves and he pants. Then her head falls upon his breast, reclining backward. There is a crimson blush suffusing her charming face. Then he looks down at her, and she looks up at him. Then there is a preceptible pressure around the waist. Then he suddenly places his lips to hers. Then she clasps him around the head. Then there is a soft, gurgling sound, as of water escaping from a kitchen sink. Then they are, as it were, glued together. Then all is still. Women in the audience become nervous. Bald headed men are paralyzed. Men around town have their watches out timing them. One second, two, three, four, five, six, seven—and then there is an explosion, as if the bung had blown out of a beer barrel. It is all over. That is the Langtry kiss.

ENJOY LIFE.

What a truly beautiful world we live in! Nature gives us grandeur of mountains, glens and oceans, and thousands of means of enjoyment. We can desire no better when in perfect health; but how often do the majority of people feel like giving it up disheartened, discouraged and worn out with disease, when there is no occasion for this feeling, as every sufferer can easily obtain satisfactory proof, that Green's August Flower, will make them free from diseases, as when born Dyspepsia and Liver complaint are the direct causes of seventy-five per cent. of such maladies as billiousness Indigestion, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Nervous Prostration, Dizziness of the Head, Palpitation of the Heart, and other distressing symptoms. Three doses of August Flower will prove its wonderful effect. Sample bottles, 10 cents. Try it. 19 3 1y

An Indolent Organ.

When the liver is indolent, as it must necessarily be when it fails to secrete the bile in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of digestion and evacuation, it should be set at work with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The healthful stimulus to activity imparted by this incomparable alterative, speedily evinces itself in a departure of the uncomfortable sensations in the right side; the nausea; fur upon the tongue; indigestion and sick headache consequent upon inactivity of the liver and the diversion of the bile from its proper channel. Irregularity of the bowels is always and painlessly reformed by the corrective indicated, which is infinitely to be preferred, both because it is safe and more efficacious to blue pill, calomel and drenching purgatives of every class. It cures and prevents fever and ague, and rheumatism.

ASTONISHING SUCCESS.

It is the duty of every person who has used Boschee's German Syrup to let its wonderful qualities be known to their friends in curing Consumption, Severe Coughs, Croup, Asthma, Pneumonia, and in fact all throat and lung diseases. No person can use it without immediate relief. Three doses will relieve any case, and we consider it the duty of all Druggists to recommend it to the poor, dying consumptive, at least to try one bottle, as 80,000 dozen bottles were sold last year, and no one case where it failed was reported. Such a medicine as the German Syrup cannot be too widely known. Ask your druggist about it. Sample bottles to try, sold at 10 cents. Regular size, 7-cents. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers in the United States and Canada.

—We are inclined to give "Old Probs" a complimentary notice, because he was right once in his prognostications. For instance, on Friday he said that Saturday would bring "clear weather with stationary temperature." On Friday night, when we read this, it looked as if the rain might continue a week, and we did not believe "Old Probs." But when we saw the fog flying away and the sky appearing next morning, we mentally concluded that "Old Probs" had blundered into the truth.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and began buying it of me. In six month's time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it."

Death of Bishop Stevens.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—William Bacon Stevens, D. D., L L. D., Bishop of the Diocese of Pennsylvania of the Protestant Episcopal church, died at his residence, No. 134 Spruce street, at 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

[William Bacon Stevens, fourth bishop of Pennsylvania, was born in Bath, Maine, July 13, 1815. He pursued his classical studies in Phillips academy, Andover, Massachusetts, but his health failed, and he spent two years in foreign travel. Returning to the United States, he graduated M. D. from Dartmouth, Hanover, New Hampshire, 1837. Ordained deacon February. 26, 1843. Ordained priest January 7, 1845. Rector of St. Andrew's Philadelphia, from 1848 to 1862. Received degree of D. D. from the University of Pennsylvania, 1848 and that of LL. D. from Union College, Schenectady 1862. Consecrated assistant bishop of Pennsylvania in St. Andrew's Philadelphia, January 2nd, 1862, by Bishops, of Vermont; A. Potter, of Pennsylvania; Lee, of Delaware; H. Potter, of New York; Clark, of Rhode Island; Lee, of Iowa, and Odenheimer, of New Jersey. Upon the death of Bishop Potter(1865), he became the bishop of Pennsylvania. In the year 1865 the diocese was divided and a new see formed in the western portion of the state, under the title of the diocese of Pittsburgh. In 1871 the diocese was again divided and another see created, under the title of the diocese of Central Pennsylvania. In 1868 he was appointed by the presiding bishop to take charge of the American Episcopal churches on the continent of Europe, which position he held for six years.]

General Sheridan's Letter.

ST. LOUIS, June 12.—General Noble and Colonel Dyer have received a long letter from General Sheridan in which he discusses at some length the recent muddle regarding the invitation of President Cleveland to visit St. Louis during the Grand Army encampment, and in the course of it he says: "Mr. Cleveland is president of the United States, by a fair election of all our people, and is commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States, free to come and go whenever the jurisdiction of this, our national government, extends. He may visit any fort or ship, where the national flag will be lowered to manifest respect to him and his office, and should a foreign ship fail to do him full honors none will be so quick to resent an insult as the members of the Grand Army of the Republic, who periled life and limb and to make that flag respected at home and abroad. The idea of his being insulted much less endangered, should he be on the stand along side of our commander-in-chief, General Fairchild, when the Grant Army is passing review, seems to be monstrous, and I will pledge my life that no Iowa soldier will do so unmanly an act, and should Mr. Cleveland accept the invitation, which I hope he will, to attend the parade of the Grand Army of the Republic at St. Louis it will stand by his side or march past in the ranks of the Ransom post, as may be ordered by General Fairchild."

Foreign Flashes.

LONDON, June 13.—A dispatch from Zanzibar says that a slave dhow attacked the launch of a British man-of-war and wounded an officer and five men. The dhow was, however, sunk by the force on the launch, and the slaves upon her—forty-three in number—were rescued.

Advices from Merv say that the Russians at Chardjui are fitting out two steamers and a number of iron lighters to transport material for the Trans-Caspian railway and to reconnoitre on the Amu-Daria river. The British are equipping two light draught steamers with steel guns for use upon the upper Amu Daria.

A curious story about Stanley is told by a friend of the explorer, a journalist connected with a London daily newspaper. He says that Stanley told him just before starting on his last expedition that he expected to live to see himself the most entensive land owner in the world and one of the wealthiest men of his generation.

The story was that during his explorations of Africa, Stanley was struck with the amazing fertility of the region and and the superior natural advantages possessed by many spots for use as commercial depots, owing to their situation on great rivers and in the centers of sections rich in valuable products. Firmly believing that not many years must elapse before adventurous white men would reduce these promising regions to commercial settlement, Stanley took advantage of his friendly relations with some of the powerful native chiefs to obtain by purchase several of the most commanding sites, and large tracts of the richest territory, which he intends to hold by title, trusting to time to make it remunerative.

Failure in Huntingdon County.

Special to the Altoona Tribune.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., June 13.—Horace Patterson, a miner and shipper of iron ore, whose mines are located at the base of Tussey's mountain near Grafton, this county, has failed, his liabilities, mostly preferred claims, amounting to about $15,000. The principal creditors are the Marshall Brothers, owners of the Marshall furnace at Newport, Perry county, and his mother, Mrs. Patterson, whose combined judgments are $10,000, of which $7,500 constitutes the ameunt due the Newport creditors. The Marshall Brother's claim is based on various loans made to Mr. Patterson of money which he expended in improving his property, notably the building of a railroad two miles in length and extending from his mines to the line of the Huntingdon and Broad Top railroad above Grafton. An engine and thirteen individual cars comprise the rolling stock of the enterprise.

Besides the above mentioned claims there are unpaid labor claims of considerable magnitude and a mortgage of $40,000 resting against the property.

The property is now in the hands of the sheriff, and is advertised to be sold on the 21st inst.

The Law.

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va., June 14—There was a meeting of the Miners' union at Kanawha Falls to-day for the purpose of discussing the semi-monthly pay. It is not definitely known what was done but it is feared that the agitation will lead to trouble, and the announcement of the determination of the miners is anxiously waited by the operators who employ union miners. An act was passed by the legislature at its last session changing the pay day to semi-monthly, but so far the operators have not complied with it and many of them are not able to meet the demand. Many of the miners have signed contracts for pay monthly but as a majority of the signers are union men they will either have to abide by the decision of the meeting today or withdraw from the organization.

Shot.

PITTSBURG, June 13.—Mary Ann Valentine, a daughter of George Valentine, of Etna borough, was found to-night lying on the hillside a short distance from her home in an insensible condition with a bullet hole near the right eye. She had left home shortly after supper to meet her father, carrving with her some money that Valentine wanted to use at a building and loan association meeting. No one saw the shooting, but Fritz Weyman, a German who was seen in the neighborhood intoxicated, was suspected. He was found at Sharpsburg, a mile from Etna, and had in his possession a revolver when arrested. Miss Valentine is still living but her recovery is considered impossible. Weyman denies the shooting.

The Majority for Cleveland.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 12—Some time ago the Memphis Evening Scimitar sent out circular letters to the leading newspapers of Alabama, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Tennessee and Texas, putting the following query: "In view of President Cleveland's pocket veto of the river and harbor bill, do you favor his renomination by the democratic party in 1888?" Thirty-five replies were received Of these, twenty-seven were in the affirmative, six in the negative and two non-commital.

A Panic in Wheat.

CHICAGO, June 14.—The calm of yesterday on the Chicago board of trade was followed by a whirlwind of excitement this morning. The traders had just nicely caught their breath and steadied their nerves after the break of Saturday when a second cyclone came for first offerings of July wheat. There were no takers. Every one wanted to unload, but no one wanted wheat. In less time than it takes to tell the story July wheat was offered 80¾ cents, or 3 cents less than the closing price yesterday. It was short, stern, but terrible in its effect on the crowd. Then for an hour there was a slight rally, and the leading future, July, sold up to 81½ cents.

This was but a lull in the storm. At 11 a. m. the indicator for July showed that it was again selling down, and in fifteen minutes it was offered at 79 cents, 4¾ cents below the opening an hour before. Then came the third tumble at the noon hour and July wheat sold down to 76½ cents, 7¼ cents below the opening price. The entire board was a little less than a pandemonium. At 12.30 came the startling announcement that all persons having trades with Rosenfeld & Co. one of the clique houses, should close them at once. The uproar had not subsided when July wheat took a fourth and the worst turn of the day and droppen for a moment to 74 cents and closed the morning session at 74¼.

Trouble was expected on margins. At Kershaw's a throng of people pushed in from the streets and the gallery was filled with an excited throng of men and women. It was a morning session long to be remembered as long as wheat grows. The intermission at one o'clock gave the members a chance to catch their breath and when the afternoon session was called the excitement had somewhat abated. At 2.20 o'clock it was officially announced that E. W. Barly & Co, and Hamilton & Brine requested all parties having trades with them to close them at once. The instant this announcement was made July wheat dropped to 73½ but soon recovered and went back to 74.

Five minutes later Secretary Stone rapped the tumultuous crowd to order, and read the following from the leading clique house of C. J. Kershaw & Co.,:

"We have assurance that margins and ample funds will be forthcoming by tomorrow morning, and we request that no trader be closed out."

The announcement was received with cheers, and in a few minutes July wheat was selling at 75½.

Warned to Move Out.

PITTSBURGH, June 14—This afternoon writs were served by Sheriff Gray on twenty-five of the strikers at the Pennsylvania Salt Works, at Natrona, Penn'a., ordering them to vacate the company's houses, on or before the first Monday in July. If the houses are not vacant at that time the employes will be forcibly evicted. The strikers denounce the action of the company in compelling them to leave the houses, but with one or two exceptions have promised to move out peaceably. There are no indications of a settlement of the trouble. A large demonstration of strikers will be held on Friday night, at which delegations of the Knights of Labor assemblies from all the surrounding towns will be present.

Briefs.

PITTSBURG, June 13.—A new feature of the strike in the coke regions to-day was the action of the owners of the blast furnaces. They sent a committee to members of the late syndicate, and informed them that they would positively refuse to pay more than $1.50 per ton for coke. They would keep their furnaces banked. This places the coke operators between two fires. They say that it will be impossible for them to pay the advance in wages and then reduce the price of coke.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 13.—Dago Joe, the half-breed who shot and killed Walter Haynes, a young white boy, at Shelby depot, Mississippi, on the 18th of May, was taken yesterday afternoon from the officers, who were conveying him from Duncan station, Mississippi, to the jail at Austin by a crowd of fifty men and hanged to a tree. He had been arrested at Texarkana and brought back on a requisition.

SALEM, Mass., June 13.—During a game of base ball at Marblehead this afternoon, Smith Billings and Joseph Thompson, while running to catch a ball, came together with great force. Billings had his frontal bone crushed and also received a terrible gash on the side of his head Thompson was badly hurt. Billings was taken to the Salem hospital and his condition is critical. Annual School Report.

On Tuesday evening Principal D. M. Lieb submitted the following report to the Board of School Directors:

BELLEFONTE, PA., June 14, '87.

Gentlemen of the Board:

At the close of the last school term, May 18, 1887, the enrollment of pupils in all the grades was 553, a number less than the average enrollment for the year, and due, no doubt, to the industrial activity in our midst. In examinations a fair progress was shown in the studies of the past term, and two grades—No. 8, Miss Strickland, and No. 5, Miss Humes, —showed an advancement over that of any preceding year.

The new text book in Primary Geography and the new outline maps of Pennsylvania brought an increased interest into the study of both State and National Geography.

The want of supplementary reading of equal grade with the 2d, 3d and 4th readers of the series now in use, counts for the "go-backward" instead of "go-forward in the career of some pupils.

The requirements of the law on hygiene were fully met; also the language work furnished in the rooms in which Powell's "How to Talk" was introduced.

The work of many of the teachers was done under conditions in no way favorable to good results, and yet in the main results were good. That some of the teachers would do better work in other grades than those they now teach is no doubt part of your knowledge gained by visiting them.

Just here, if you will permit me, I will state that to me it seems evident that a gradation of salary according to experience and ability, rather than on the grade taught, would aid the Board in placing them in the grade for which they are best fitted.

The success attending the closing exercises of the High School was highly gratifying to the students and their friends, and not less so to the teachers and directors. For his scholarly and instructive address, Dr. Shaub deserves a hearty vote of thanks.

The growing interest in our High School, and the increased patronage speak well for the character and ability of the teachers. To have kept the school together in its location in the Humes' building was success. How hopeful then the outlook for the year to come, in a building of our own, with increased facilities and proper surroundings!

Of the present corps of teachers all will be applicants save two, Miss Clara Strickland and Miss Alma M. Reed. A careful study of the demands of the next year shows that it will require a corps of fourteen teachers in addition to the Principal. These would be divided as follows:

High School	2
Senior Grammar	2
Junior Grammar	2
Advanced Secondary	2
Secondary	2
Primary	4
Total	14

With this corps the teaching of 528 to 650 scholars could readily be managed. As at least three of these teachers must be newly elected, I desire to suggest to the Board, in considering applicants, to inquire, in addition to knowledge of studies, into such qualifications as pleasant and attractive manners, cheerful modes of speaking, ability to sing, and, above all, sympathy and love for children for even moderate attainments, coupled with these, will yield better results than the highest gifts without them. The thorough cleaning of the Union building, first floor, second floor, and especially the cellar, will demand your attention. The changing of the primary rooms from the second to the first floor, should be done, and to consider a plan I would ask the privilege of meeting with the Committee on Building and Repairs. For the wants of the High School, I would suggest the appointment of a standing committee.

Thanking you for your uniform kindness to me in my work, I am

Very respectfully yours,
D. M. LIEB,
Principal.

—On Saturday last the Young Base Ballists of this place started to the State College, to play the second nine of that institution. The Bellefonte club were met at the College by the College team and escorted through the grounds. After a few minutes thus spent all parties started to the ball grounds. The arrangements for the game were very satisfactorily made, Mr. John Mitchell, pitcher for the first nine, acting as umpire. His decisions were very satisfactory. Bellefonte went to the bat first and were effective in handling the willow. They were slightly scared and made one or two errors which, of course, told against their score. The College boys also batted heavily. The game, which lasted 2 hours and 45 minutes, resulted in favor of the College nine by a score of 21 to 16. An excellent supper was served by the College boys and they displayed thorough courtesy, making the visit a pleasant one. The visitors hope to return the favor in Bellefonte at a very early date.

A Successful Festival.

The ice cream festival given on Friday and Saturday evenings under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association was in every respect successful. The attendance, especially the second night was large, the room being thronged all the time. We are requested by Mr. C. E. Schaeffer, who represents the management of the Association, to heartily thank all contributors for their liberal donations, the young ladies and gentlemen who served so efficiently, also all who in any way contributed to the satisfactory result.

—Sunday afternoon at Gatesburg, on the Lewisburg & Tyrone Railroad, two boys, Clark Rider, and Frank Gensamore, were playing with a couple of loaded revolvers, when the one in Gensamore's hand was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering Rider's right side below the eighth rib. Drs. Tobin and Bigelow, of Stormstown, were called and probed for the ball but did not succeed in finding it. The boy is in critical condition and it is thought he cannot recover.—Tyrone Herald.

—The Republican County Convention will be held on Tuesday, the 19th day of July. The usual primary elections, for a choice of delegates, will be held on the Saturday previous, the 16th proximo. Lane's beautiful residence and grounds the corner of Allegheny and Lamb streets and that Mrs. Lane will take the property owned by Mr. Hastings. Curious Facts about the Bible.

LEMONT, June 10, 1887.

Dear Sir: In reading your valuable paper of June 9th, I noticed the article "Interesting Bible Facts." I will now add others to them. The Bible contains 3,586,489 letters, 773,992 words, 31,173 verses, 1,189 chapters and 66 books. The word "and" occurs 49,277 times. The word "Lord" occurs 1,855 times. The word "reverend" occurs but once, which is in the 9th verse of the 111th Psalm. The middle verse is the 8th verse of the 118th Psalm. The 21st verse of the 7th chapter of Ezra contains all the letters of the alphabet except the letter J. The finest chapter to read is the 26th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles. The 19th chapter of II Kings and the 37th chapter of Isaiah are alike. The longest verse is the 9th verse of the 8th chapter of Esther. The shortest verse is the 35th verse of the 11th chapter of the Gospel according to St. John. The 8th, 15th, 21st and 31st verses of the 109th Psalm are alike. All the verses of the 136th Psalm end alike. There are no words or names of more than six syllables.

Trout.

Yes, ask Cam. Burnside, Jack Love or any other true sport if they are not the greatest boon that Heaven ever endowed this earth's streams with, and Spring creek is the centre of creation for this gamy speckled beauty to abound. The State has liberally furnished us with twenty thousand trout, Mr. Editor, to stock this most favored stream with. Now, have we manhood enough to protect our streams? Only last Thursday night there was a party who fished with scoop nets in the best localities of our trout fishing grounds, and the next day exposed for sale strings of thirty trout on our streets. And I am told by good authority that dynamite was used below the rolling mill of Valentine & Co., and even now hundreds of small trout can be seen lodged in the moss in that vicinity. Is it not true that a stop should be put to this practice? The whole community is interested in the preservation of the trout in our streams, and it is not right that the avarice of a few individuals should control this matter.

AN OBSERVER

—The people of Spring Mills will have a rich treat next Saturday evening. Our talented and eloquent ministerial citizen, Rev. Chas. T. Steck, will at that time, deliver his popular lecture, "The Here, Recognized and Unrecognized," in the Presbyterian church of that place. Mr. Steck to attend the lecture, which is a fine literary creation delivered with wonderful force and power. People who may have heard him once will be sure to hear him this time.

Newsy Notes from Spring Mills.

Prof. Manger and Mr. Murray, of Centre Hall, came from that place to our town on bicycles in thirty-five minutes.

Mary Evans, of Muncy, is the guest of W. R. From, and Mrs. E. B. McMullen and Emma McMullen, of Millheim, are guests of Mrs. Alexander.

Last week, while that great storm passed through Penns Valley the lightning struck Mr. Philips Auman's barn and four pine trees that stood near the barn. Some of the timbers were slightly shattered, but very little other damage was done. Mr. Auman lives three miles west of Spring Mills.

Miss Carrie Secrist went to Lock Haven to attend the funeral of her sister Mary which occurred on last Sunday. James Leitzel and wife, who are uncle and aunt, respectively, of the deceased, also attended the funeral.

Prof. W. P. Hosterman's school closed on Friday last after a successful term. He is an able teacher and deserves a higher position. I understand that he expects to open his school again on the last week of July or the first of August.

The Challenge Cornet Band are about to supply themselves with new uniforms and a charter. They expect to visit Bellefonte and show their appreciation of the charter by rendering excellent music. The Challenge band can play with any similar organization of its age. They also intend to hold a festival on Saturday coming. Ego.

The Old and the New.

The advertisements in this paper, today, contain announcement of a dissolution of partnership in the flouring mill firm of Thos. R. Reynolds & Co., and the formation of a new firm to continue the business at the old place. The name of the new firm will be George W. Jackson & Co. The members of the old firm were Thos. R. Reynolds and George W. Jackson, of this place, and Samuel H. Reynolds, of Lancaster. Mr. Jackson retains his interest in the business and the other gentlemen are succeeded by W. Fred Reynolds.

Mr. Reynolds, who becomes a member of the new firm, has been with his uncle, Major Wm. F. Reynolds, in the banking company. He is a young gentleman of fine business qualifications, agreeable and popular. He retains his interest in the bank, and will be the business manager of the flouring mill firm. The efficient training which he has received added to his natural acumen in such affairs fit him admirably for the position. Mr. Jackson, the senior member of the new firm, is well-known. He has no superior as a business man. We wish for the new firm that prosperity which we have reason to believe its predecessors always enjoyed.

TWO MILLIONAIRES have been prominent in local interest in Washington during the week. Jay Gould made a flying unostentatious visit there on his steam yacht, Atalanta. The beautiful vessel was anchored about a mile below the city while the millionaire and his wife came ashore and remained half a day driving to some of the places of interest. Mr. Gould, it is said, is in search of health and recreation. He improved the opportunity to visit the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon, and stood upon the bluff from which it is said that Washington threw a silver dollar to the Maryland shore, a full half mile distant. The English Chief Justice Colridge heard of this fabulous feat when he stood on the same promontory three years ago, and said he was not prepared to dispute it, but if it were so, it was evinced that a dollar would go farther in Washington's time than it would now. Mr. Corcoran, the Washington millionaire and philanthropist, was stricken with paralysis last week while seated at the dinner table; death seemed inevitable, for the venerable good man is now in his eighty-ninth year, but his recovery has been rapid and remarkable, and his physician says that he hopes to have him ready for his usual Summer sojourn at the White Sulphur Virginia Springs, within a week.

THE Washington correspondent of the Pittsburg Times states that "Mr. Randall and Gov. Curtin have just found themselves utterly ignored by Secretary Fairchild in the appointment of Oscar J. Harvey, of Wilkesbarre, to the place of Chief of Division under the Second Comptroller of the Treasury."

Here and There.

J. D. Perkins, the Worcester sauce maker, who died recently, leaves a fortune of $3,325,000 to his wife and children.

Since Bob Burdette, the humorist, was elected a deacon in the Baptist church he regards a pun as a passport to Chicago.

Dr. Torrence, physician of the American Missionary Society in Persia, has been created grand officer of the Lion and Sun by the shah.

An English paper calls Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes "a lion." He is, indeed, and his roar is as sweet and gentle as it is welcome.

Signor Nicolini declares that he and Madame Patti will both be glad when "we settle in Craig-y-Nos and sing no more except for our friends who visit us." He expects to give his undivided attention to billiards.

It is said that Speaker Husted is to leave Peekskill, settle in Poughkeepsie, and run for Congress. But, then, who can ever tell what the "Bald Eagle" is to do.

Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt is expected to sail in his steam yacht, the Alva, to Scotland, and take possession of a shooting preserve which he has purchased for the summer.

Mrs. Cleveland's note paper and envelopes are stamped with the words "Executive Mansion, Washington," in small silver capitals, and the seal in white wax bears her monogram.

Dorothy Whitney, who was so thoroughly christened a short time ago, has been invited to attend a ball at the Naval Academy. She doesn't feel "quite up to it," however.

The Woman's Press Association of O. has been in existence a year, and is in a prosperous condition. It is composed entirely of active female journalists and authors.

Mary Anderson has bought $60,000 worth of property at Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass. How Kansas City real estate agents will turn green with envy when they hear this!

George W. Childs, it is said, never eats anything at the big dinners he gives. Mr. Childs has learned from experience that he is a wise man who allows some one else to eat the big dinners.

Hints for All.

The following from the New York Sun will apply especially to those who expect to visit a large city, though some of the injunctions are applicable to any place:

Keep sober.
Avoid crowds.
Keep to the right.
Don't talk to strangers.
Keep your wits about you.
Keep your eyes wide open.
Don't let strangers talk to you.
Do not talk loud, dress loud, nor act loud.

Never seek to attract attention to yourself.

If you wear a watch keep your coat buttoned up.

Never exhibit money or valuables in public places.

Never let your curiosity get the better of your discretion.

If you want information, ask a uniformed police officer.

Don't give the waiter his tips until you are through eating.

Don't try to create the impression that you are a millionaire.

See that the way is clear before you attempt to cross the street.

Always go about as if you were on business, whether you are or not.

Don't patronize the shop that keeps a man on the sidewalk to urge you.

Don't be afraid to say "no," and to say it understandingly and decisively.

Look out for the young man who wants to carry your gripsack for ten cents.

Never expect to get something for nothing. It will be a dear purchase in the end.

Move along on the sidewalk with the procession, and don't try to buck against it.

When you are in doubt keep straight ahead until you meet a police officer, and then ask him

Never hand the car conductor, bootblack, or newsboy a $5 bill and expect him to make change.

Look out for the fellow who wants to "step inside" or around the corner to get your bill changed.

If you meet a friend or acquaintance don't stand and talk with him in the middle of the sidewalk.

Have your name and address and the name and address of some friend in your pocket.

Make a memoranda of the street and number where you leave anything that you expect to get again.

Do not employ a hack or cab unless its number is conspicuously displayed, and remember the number.

Do not allow yourself to be deceived with the false notion that you are sharper than the pickpockets.

You needn't tell everybody you meet that you are from the country. They will find it out easy enough.

Before starting for any given place ascertain the most direct route, and then follow it without asking questions.

Avoid the man who says he came from your town and mentions to you the names of some people you know.

Don't wrangle with a hackman; but if you think he is swindling you call a police officer and leave the matter to him.

Mint Sauce.—Chop fine one bunch of mint, mix with a tablespoonful of white sugar, a pinch of salt and pepper each, and five tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Stir well and serve with roast lamb or veal.

An Indolent Organ.

When the liver is indolent, as it must necessarily be when it fails to secrete the bile in sufficient quantities to meet the requirements of digestion and evacuation, it should be set at work with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The healthful stimulus to activity imparted by this incomparable alterative, speedily evinces itself in a departure of the uncomfortable sensations in the right side; the nausea; fur upon the tongue; indigestion and sick headache consequent upon inactivity of the liver and the diversion of the bile from its proper channel. Irregularity of the bowels is always and painlessly reformed by the corrective indicated, which is infinitely to be preferred, both because it is safe and more efficacious to blue pill, calomel and drenching purgatives of every class. It cures and prevents fever and ague, and rheumatism.

President Garfield's Physician.

Dr. Bliss speaking in the highest terms of Speer's Port Wine writes the following from

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 25, 1884.
ALFRED SPEER, ESQ., Pasaic, N. J.

Dear Sir:—I have to acknowledge the superior quality of Wines of your production, notably your Port Wine, and to say I have prescribed them for my patients for the past two years, with uniform and satisfactory results. I have full confidence in the purity of your Wines and that they are uniformly of standard strength, hence prescribe them almost exclusively in my practice.

Very truly yours,
D. W. BLISS, M. D.

A Fact Worth Knowing.

A physician in Genesee Co., N. Y., who has used Gilmore's Aromatic Wine in his practice, for several years, recently wrote to the proprietors as follows:—"I do not think you give sufficient publicity to the value of your Aromatic Wine in all cases of dysentery, cholera morbus and summer complaints generally. I have for three seasons past used it in many severe cases of the above, and it has never failed to afford speedy and gratifying relief." No proprietary remedy has ever received such general endorsement from regular physicians of high standing as Gilmore's Aromatic Wine.

A Waterspout near Johnstown.

JOHNSTOWN, June 8, The flood here yesterday was caused by a waterspout west of Hooverville, Somerset County, a village on the line of the Somerset and Cambria Railway. The village was entirely under water and the destruction of property is great. Many thousand of logs belonging to the Latrobe Lumber Company passed here yesterday. The bridges above here were carried off. Kernville bridge was partly destroyed. The one at Coopersdale was entirely swept away, as was the one at Von Lumens, near town. The destruction of property is enormous, but the amount cannot be learned now. At Hooversville the work of the flood is appalling. Upwards of 20 residences were washed off their foundations and deposited on the ground. At least one hundred families in this borough lost everything in the lower stories and cellars of their houses.

The water having subsided, the scene to-day is one of desolation and ruin. Yards and streets are blocked with debris and rubbish; houses filled up with water-soaked goods and mud, and crowds of women and children are standing about weeping and mourning over their ruined homes. In Gubbtown, Conemaugh Borough, Morrillville, Minesville, Cambria City and Coopersdale the same scene is presented, and it is estimated that 200 people were temporarily rendered homeless and dependent for shelter on the charity of their fortunate neighbors. No estimate can be made at present, but it is thought it will reach $150,000 in this vicinity alone. No lives were lost as far as known.

Mrs. D. J. Morrell, relict of Hon. D. J. Morrell, died from heart disease about midnight, produced it is supposed, by excitement caused by the water surrounding her house, and being several feet in the lower story. Colonel James M. Cooper, a wealthy and influential citizen of Coopersdale, also dropped dead from over excitement. He and Mrs. Morrell were each about 65 years of age A number of other deaths from the floods are reported, but the rumor lacks confirmation.

Affairs in Germany.

LONDON, June 9.— A Berlin correspondent wires that a feeling of great apprehension prevails in official circles in that city. The emperor has fretted so much over the misfortune of the crown prince that he is in a mental condition which unfits him for the transaction of even routine business and his own delicate health is put in grave peril by insomnia.

The physicians of the aged monarch have begun to administer hypodermic injections of morphia to produce sleep. What the result of reaction from this treatment is likely to be on a system enfeebled by age, is not a reassuring subject for contemplation.

It has been affirmed by the doctors that the Emperor would eventually die of some sudden attack of his chief ailment, diarrhoea, which would prove too obstinate for their remedies. The use of morphia is said by eminent medical men whom the correspondent has consulted on the subject to be very risky in view of this complication. With the emperor's life hanging by a thread, the Crown Prince suffering from an incurable and fearful malady, and Bismark himself growing feeble, there are certain to be difficult situations in store for Germany.

It is not apparent upon the surface just who is to be relied upon to supply efficiently the places of those important personages when in the course of nature they are removed from activity. Gen. Boulanger, it may be appropriate to add in this connection, commented recently in conversation with an English officer upon the fact that all of Germany's great generals were so old that they could not possibly take an active part many years longer in the conduct of field operations.

The French general did not place so much stress upon this fact itself, as upon what he asserted to be the paucity of younger officers of ability in the German army. He declared that he could hardly name one such officer who could, if required, assume charge of a campaign and cope with an enemy commanded by any one of a half a dozen generals whom he named in the service of either England or France. If this allegation be well founded it furnishes additional reason for anticipation of European disturbances following upon the changes that are likely to soon occur in the German sovereignty.

Frightened by Indians.

NOGALES, Ariz., June 9.—The Indian outbreak in this territory is assuming serious proportions. The widespread depredations indicate that there are many more than seventeen bucks, as at first reported, on the war path. The whole country is fired with excitement, and it is feared parties will organize to visit the San Carlos reservation. In such an event there will be great slaughter. Advices are coming from all directions of outrages. Word comes from W. E. Leek, of Crittenden, that he and two others were aroused yesterday morning by several rifle shots, and found they were surrounded by Indians. Mike Grace, one of the party, an old pioneer, and highly esteemed and prominent citizen of Arizona, was killed. The other two made their escape through a canyon pursued by the savages. The former was a brother of ex-Mayor Grace, of New York.

The people of Crittenden appealed to the station agent at Nogalos, "For God's sake send us aid." In fifteen minutes a special train had soldiers on board in charge of Captain Lee. A portion of the command, under Captain Nutt, is on the trail of the hostiles. A courier reports that Nutt's force ran into a party of Indians and is now chasing them over the hills. They seem to be making for the Pategonia mountains, and it is quite evident that the hostiles intend to reach the Sierra Madre mountains.

A telegram from Calabases to the chief of Police at Nogales says the Indians fired upon McCullock's ranch and are on their way south. Another party, it is reported, pushed southwest out Calabasas.

A Fire in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURGH, June 10.—The Western Union Office in this place is a total ruin.

The switch-board caught fire from the wires about 3 o'clock this morning, when only two men were on duty, and they were powerless to stay the resulting conflagration. The flames spread to the battery rooms and the telephone rooms, and the whole two upper stories of the building were burned out.

The building stood at the corner of Fifth avenue and Wood street, was a five-story structure, and one of the most imposing in the city.

In the mansard, on the fifth floor, some 8,000 or 10,000 cells of gravity battery were stored, and in a few minutes the fire had reached and was making havoc among them. At the same time the floor of the operating room burned through and the telephone room was soon in the thick of trouble. The fire department had promptly responded to the call, and under the direction of Chief Evans were throwing several streams upon the burning building. The water poured down through the blazing rooms and into the office of the bank. Bedillion's jewelry store, too, was pretty well drowned. The network of wires that entered the building were burned or cut off in the first onslaught and dropped with a crash to the street. Within half an hour from the time that the alarm was given all the damage was done and the department had the fire under control. The mansard had fallen in, and masses of iron, wood and tin were dropping into Fifth avenue at intervals.

Before the fire was got under control it looked as if the First National would have to pay its checks somewhere else. Chief Detective Gamble Wier was on the ground with all his available force, should it be found necessary to remove the deposits of the bank, as it was doubtful if any other bank could take up the First National's checks and walk off with its immense business without assistance from the other banks. The two or three millions locked up in the First National's vaults were looked upon as safe from fire or water, as there was very little combustible matter surrounding the safes to heat the mass of masonry which surrounds them.

The building, which was one of the handsomest in the business portion of the city, presents a very forlorn aspect to-day. The blackened and twisted ornamental iron cornice, the mass of charred timbers above it, and the gaping window openings, from which pour streams of dirty water, tell eloquently of the wreck within. Down the iron staircase to the street rushed a torrent, while from above there was a rain of filth that materially assisted in keeping back the crowd. A ladder reaching to the very roof affords a shaky foothold for the firemen, who run carelessly up and down, or ply axes in cutting away portions of the coping that might fall.

The loss to the Telephone Company, so far as their property in the building is concerned, is complete. The room is a total wreck, most of the damage resulting from water. Everything will have to be thoroughly dried out before business can be resumed, even when the wires are connected. The Western Union Telegraph Company, though burned out of house and home, has other facilities such as are impossible to the Telephone Company, and hence are able to give tolerably good service in spite of the fire.

Evictions in Ireland.

DUBLIN, June 10.—The resistance offered the victors at Bodyke to-day portends very serious trouble. The government may deem it necessary to employ troops more than heretofore, and in view of Mr. Balfour's remark that the government would not hesitate to use any means at its disposal to carry out the decrees of the law courts, this does not seem improbable. When the evicting party reached the house of O'Halloran, whom they intended to remove, they found that a deep trench had been dug about the house and every precaution taken for defense. The lower part of the house was strongly barricaded and ten men, including two Americans, stood behind the doors and windows. Some women were at the windows upstairs with boiling water.

The bailiffs saw that it was useless to attempt to enter the doors so they began to crowbar a hole in the wall. From this work they were driven by scalding water poured by the woman in the upper windows. An inspector mounted a ladder placed against the house, and, with drawn sword, tried to drive the women away, but he was ignominiously defeated and beaten down. A constable, with a fixed bayonet, then attempted the same feat. His head was badly battered and he was scalded, but in defending himself he inflicted several severe gashes upon his assailants. Another constable also failed to dislodge the women from their stronghold. Another ladder was then procured and one after another of the bailiffs who mounted were driven back.

On the Rail.

PITTSBURGH, June 8.—The Fast Line west on the Fort Wayne & Chicago road, which left the city shortly before 12 o'clock last night, ran into a freight train at 2 o'clock this morning at Columbiana, O., sixty miles west of Pittsburgh. Several freight cars were wrecked and the engine of the passenger train was almost completely demolished. The engineer, Overlander, sustained a fracture of the collar bone in jumping. The passengers were badly shaken up but no one was injured. The trains were delayed several hours.

A Sharp Jury.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The work of securing a jury to try Jacob Sharp was continued to-day. The sixth seat the only vacant one, was filled about noon by William R. Mead, and the prosecution then expressed themselves as being satisfied with the jury as it stood.

Briefs.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 10.—Between three and four hundred bricklayers quit work to-day in sympathy with the striking carpenters. They make no demand for themselves. The plumbers and stonemasons have signified their willingness to go out if requested. In the event thirty-five hundred men will be involved. A general mass meeting is to be held to-morrow night.

LONDON, June 10.—A dispatch received here to-day states that Vernome, in Turkestan, has been almost wholly destroyed by earthquakes. One hundred and twenty persons were killed and twenty-five injured, including General Friede, the governor of Zermiretchinsk. The seismic disturbances continue, and people are fleeing to the open country.

BERLIN, June 8.—Dr. McKenzie, of London, to-day performed a second operation upon the tumor in the Crown Prince's throat, and successfully removed another portion of the growth. SUDDEN DEATH.

MR. AGNEW SELLERS, OF NEAR FILLMORE, PASSES AWAY FRIDAY EVENING.

On Friday Mr. Agnew Sellers, a prominent and highly respected citizen living near Fillmore, was in Bellefonte, with his wagon and a team of horses, and attended to business as usual. He seemed to be as he always has been in the possession of the most robust health. He did not complain at all, but greeted his friends with that cheerfulness and heartiness which characterized him. He went to his home, partook of supper, attended to his usual duties and near 8 o'clock complained of a pain on his chest. He laid down and expired a few minutes thereafter.

Mr. Sellers was about 75 years of age. He was born in this county and had lived all his life in the vicinity of Fillmore. He was one of the most widely known citizens of the county.

His death was a most terrible shock to his aged wife, who has been in delicate health for many years and who depended almost entirely on her husband to give her that care and attention which she so greatly needed. It is feared that the event may prove very disastrous in its effects on her. The deceased leaves one son and three daughters all of whom are married. Matlock Sellers, the son, lives near his parents' home. Mrs. Benjamin Way, a daughter, also lives in the same locality. The other daughters are Mrs. Dr. McEntire, who lives at Flemington, and Mrs. Musser, whose home is at Rock Hill.

Heart disease is said to have been the cause of his sudden death. But so entirely unsuspected was such an event that it will surprise and shock all who hear of it.

Death of a Minister.

REV. EDMUND C. BAIRD, A NATIVE OF CENTRE COUNTY, DIES IN THE WEST.

On Wednesday, the 1st of June, Rev. Edmund C. Baird died at his home in Central City, Nebraska. Deceased was a son of Mr. Willam Baird, of Milesburg, and he was born in this county on Nov. 18, 1845, making his age 41 years, 8 months and 13 days. He spent most of his life in this county, acquiring his education at what is now Bucknell University in Lewisburg. He entered the Baptist ministry, and being richly endowed with talent and energy, with an intense love for the sacred profession upon which he entered his life became a very useful one. He married when about 28 years of age and for a while was the pastor of a Baptist congregation near the city of Pittsburg. He had lived in Central City, Nebraska, about three years where he was highly esteemed as a pastor and citizen.

His death was very sudden. One of his sons was driving a cow which ran out of the usual path and was about to escape when Mr. Baird started to run after her. Suddenly he stopped, put his hands to his head and fell forward a corpse. The news of his death came with crushing force to his aged parents who live in Milesburg. He leaves a wife and four sons, who will deeply feel the removal so suddenly of one who had been to them a faithful husband, father, counselor and friend.

A Wedding Event

The home of J. N. Hall, near Howard, was the scene of a happy wedding on Thursday. We are not informed as to the precise hour of the day when the event was consummated. The contracting parties were Miss S. Alice Hall, a daughter of J. N. Hall, and Geo. R. Stiffler, one of the auditors of Blair county, Rev. J. A. Sell, of Blair county, said the important words which changed two into one.

Both bride and groom are popular young people. As they enter the matrimonial state a bright and inviting future is before them. The happiness of the wedding day was but an example of that of all the days to follow. There was the presence of many friends, a choice collation to discuss in all its superb excellence, numerous appropriate gifts to examine, a shower of congratulations, and all was truly as joyous as the famous marriage bell. They went to Blair county, where a round of festivities await them ere they settle down to a quiet married life. May best prospects and brightest hopes be more than realized.

—We are very sorry to hear that some of the boys in this place are guilty of the despisable act of stealing flowers. Peo- living along Allegheny street have had numerous quite beautiful flowers taken from their yards, among them Mr. Fearon Mann, who has in this way lost fifteen tulips and other varieties. Of course, it is not a pleasant duty to arrest these thieves, but the police are informed and if the offense is repeated some one will go to jail and will spend the summer there.

To Delinquent Subscribers.

The latest postal laws are such that newspaper publishers can have arrested any one for fraud who takes a paper and refuses to pay for it. Under this law the man who allows his subscription to run along for some time unpaid, and then orders it discontinned or orders the postmaster to mark it "refused," and to send a postal card notifying the publisher, lays himself liable to arrest and fine, the same as for theft, etc.

M. E. District Conference.

At the second meeting of the Altoona district conference of the Central Pennsylvania M. E. church, which was held in Curwensville, on Tuesday, the 7th., Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., served as secretary. Prof. David Lieb was on the programme for an essay, but could not be present. The presiding elder's report is given in the Altoona Tribune as follows:

My report made so recently to the annual conference makes unnecessary any lengthy report at present. I am glad to be able to say that the work in the district moves forward. Thus far we have the prophecy of a good year.

The first quarterly conferences have all been held. I was present at all except two. Immediately after the meeting of our annual conference, I called a meeting of the members of the church in Allegheny circuit and organized a quarterly conference by the election of stewards and trustees. Bro. J. A. J. Williams is, by request of the quarterly conference, appointed to take charge of the work.

Eighth Avenue has asked for an assistant pastor and Brother J. B. Stein has been appointed to that work. All other charges remain as arranged at conference. The preachers were well received in their various charges and begin the year hopefully. Only one charge voted a decrease in salary and in that one case it was entirely unnecessary. A number of charges have increased the pastor's pay. In nearly all our stations and in many circuits the plan of the discipline is used in collecting funds. Some seem to fear that, in using some financial plan, they might once succeed in paying the preacher. So they go on in the "good old way" and each year report their usual deficiency. Examination of the reports shows no deficiency in any charge where the plan is used, except in a single case, where, on account of unusual circumstances, it was in use only a part of the year.

Church building and improvement is going on to some extent, though not so much of this kind of work will be done this year. At Fifth avenue, Altoona, it was found necessary to enlarge the building, which was dedicated less than a year ago. Simpson, Altoona, is actively at work. Mount Joy church, on Clearfield, circuit, is being rebuilt. Utahville is building the foundation of a new church. Bellwood is adding a tower and bell. Spring Mills will report a new church by the close of the year. So will State College and Allport. Boalsburg is rebuilding. New parsonages are under way at Clearfield, West Clearfield and Coalport. The district is evidently in good condition. Our growth seems to be permanent. There is, however, much ground to be occupied. How to occupy it is a problem which must soon be solved by us or others will solve it for us. Some of our preachers are fearfully crowded with work already large enough yet still expanding. The universal demand for Sunday services among our mining population makes it difficult to reach out and take in the large territory now needing attention. I most earnestly hope that the report of your committee on the destitute parts of our district will receive careful attention and that what they recommend will be approved by you or lead to the adoption of some better way to meet the pressing demands of our scattered people.

I need not speak at length of my own work. Suffice it to say that, to attend to my office work, travel from ten to twenty miles each Sunday, preach usually three times and often attend two communion services and two love feasts, and a children's meeting or two, keeps me busy. The best I have is being given to the work in my charge. I most earnestly hope that this district conference will be the means of helping us all to do our work more efficiently, and that our success in both spiritual and material things will be greater than that of former years. GEORGE LEIBY, P. E.

Short Life and a Merry One.

The Chump Centre Clarion, which was issued as a daily for the first time on April 10, contained the following in the salutatory: "This venture is response to the clamoring of many of our best citizens, and a conviction that the growth and enterprise of Chump Centre demands a daily paper. Being thoroughly satisfied that the people will stay by us, and encourage us in our innovation, we launch our daily on the sea of journalism without a fear for the future. We have come to stay. Selah!" The issue of May 1 contained the following: "With this issue the Clarion becomes a thing of the past. A great many of our best citizens clamored for a daily paper, and when it was issued they wanted it delivered free, and kicked because the inside pages, which were filled with plates, were not devoted to local news. They advertised freely, but when the bills were sent in they said they would see themselves jim-dasted before they would pay such bills. We have therefore quit for keeps. Selah!"

—An occurrence in Clearfield this Spring may afford some light on a subject which was discussed in the borough council on the occasion of its recent meeting. We copy from the Republican, of Clearfield, as follows: During April last, one George Wilson, of Pittsburgh, visited this place selling water color paintings and the borough authorities required of him a license which he refused to pay. He gave bail for his good faith and then left town. The second scene was enacted last Friday evening when U. S. Marshall Miller caused the arrest of F. G. Harris, L. K. McCullough and John Dougherty, Jr., for "damages to the amount of $5,000 and upwards for unlawfully and otherwise detaining said George Wilson while in discharge of his duties." James Mitchell and W. C. Cardon went bail for the parties for their appearance at Pittsburgh this week in the United States Court.

His Sermons Highly Appreciated.

Rev. Chas. T. Steck, pastor of the Lutheran church, visited Clearfield on Sunday last to assist in the services incident to the laying of the corner stone of a new Lutheran church building, in that town, preaching both morning and evening. The two principal papers take advantage of the occasion to extend to him very complimentary notices. For instance, we quote from the Journal the following:

"The inclement weather did not prevent the gathering of a large congregation to hear the sermon which was preached by Rev. Chas. T. Steck, of Bellefonte. It was a masterly effort both as to substance and the choice language in which it was expressed, while it was oratorically beautiful. He possesses a delightful deep and mellow voice, but which has great power when necessary, and his manner is most impressive; even his gestures are eloquent. Clearfield has been favored with many orators but none who surpass Rev. Steck in ability to edify an audience."

And this is from the editorial columns of the Republican: "The congregation and pastor of the Lutheran church in this place were fortunate in securing, for their corner stone laying occasion, the pulpit service of Rev. C. T. Steck, of Bellefonte, who officiated in that capacity last Sunday.

Many of our people remembered him when on a former occasion he delivered a lecture in our Court House, on Horace Greely, which was done eloquently and appropriately. He demonstrated on the present occasion that he is as well at home in the pulpit as on the platform.

The same deep, sonorous and flexible voice, ease and grace of action, aptness of illustration, force of thought, outbursts of intense feeling, and strong individuality all through, mark his actions in both fields. He is, without doubt, one of the ablest pulpit orators belonging to the Lutheran denomination. Mr. Steck is a representative of an old Lutheran family, several of whom are prominent for pulpit oratory and it is a good illustration of the old remark: "Blood will tell." The Bellefonte congregation may well be proud of their pastor."

Explosion of an Engine.

A railroad engine exploded at the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad station, at Chester, Pa., on Tuesday morning, June 7, killing a young man named Joseph W. McCane and seriously injuring six other persons whose names are:

John Murphy, telegraph operator; residing at Second and Kerlin Streets; badly scalded and hurt about the head.

A. J. Benjamin, station agent; cut about the face and breast; injuries not of a fatal nature.

Allen Benjamin, son of the station agent; hurt about the feet.

George Schofield, foreman of the painters; burned and scalded.

H. L. Blakeley, fireman, residing at 620 North Caroline Street, Baltimore; scalded on the back; not badly injured.

Lambert Potts, carpenter, residing in Cecil County, Md.; suffering from shock.

State Teachers' Association.

The State Teachers' Association will this year be held July 5th, 6th and 7th, 1887, in Clearfield, a beautiful mountain town nestled in the western foot-hills of the Alleghenies. Heretofore the association has been held in the cities, but the extreme heat suggested the cool retreat of the mountains.

This association comprises the leading college men, State normal principals, superintendents and teachers of the State, and its discussions are always able and dignified and in the interest of improved legislation and methods of instruction.

The excursion up the Bell's Gap railroad and one to Cresson Springs will be a delightful one. It will be had on Friday, July 8th. All persons desiring to visit Clearfield during this meeting should address J. Fletcher Sickel, ticket agent, Germantown, Pa., and secure orders for special rates of excursion.

Notes from Omaha.

A letter from Dr. Rhone, who is now in Omaha, Neb., contains the following: "On last Sunday afternoon all the Lutheran Sunday-schools in the city, except the Missourians, met in the Swedish Lutheran church—the largest in the city. It is said to hold over fifteen hundred people and was packed full. Luther's hymn "Ein Feste Burg" (a strong tower) was sung by the audience in four languages—English, German, Swedish and Danish—at the same time. It was grand, kept good time and made that large church ring."

In noting the visit of Mrs. Williams to Omaha we said she lived in Lincoln. We should have said Fremont. Among the the Doctor's visitors was Prof. Gilbert White, formerly a student at State College. The Professor is located in Lincoln.

Centre County Patrons Exhibition.

This affair used to be called the Granger's Picnic, and each year was attended by thousands. This year it has taken a sudden leap forward and will be greater and grander than ever before—hence, has been given a new name. It will occur in September and will continue two days. The site selected is the same as before—the summit of the Nittany Mountain. A large number of tents will be procured from Williams Grove and arrangements have been completed to have free exhibitions of sterioption views of Gettysburg. The industries and manufactories—and, of course, all agriculturists—are invited to exhibit their products. This, it is hoped, will attract to it many more than before.

The State Board of Agriculture.

The proceedings of the State Board of Agriculture in the Court House on Wednesday afternoon and evening were carried out in accordance with the published programme. They were of great interest to farmers and we are surprised that so few gathered to hear the really valuable papers and discussions. Every sentence uttered was so important that it is impossible to give a satisfactory report in a limited space. Most of the topics relating to commercial fertilizers on Wednesday afternoon were abundantly illustrated on charts and proved additionally interesting. The evening lecture was especially enjoyable.

Twitmire—Arrowsmith.

The 9.30 o'clock train from the west brought to Bellefonte Friday morning a bride and groom. We did not at first recognize in the manly looking groom, Dr. T. C. Twitmire, whom we used to know so familiarly as "Tom." He is the son of Mr. Henry Twitmire of Curwensville, (formerly of this place) and he was married at the home of the brides parents, on Thursday evening, to Miss Nellie daughter of Mr. James Arrowsmith, of Gallitzin. Rev. Robert McCaslin, the Presbyterian pastor at Ebensburg, tied the nuptial knot.

—Mr. E. G. Schaefler is one of Boggs township's most successful teachers. He has taught four terms in that township and two terms in Lycoming county, being very successful in schools where preceding teachers had failed. It is probable that he will apply for a school in this place, and we do not know anyone at present who would fit better into the place in the High School left vacant by the decision of the assistant teacher not to apply for it again. Mr. Schaeffer is a brother of C. E. Schaeffer of the Y. M. C. A., who was himself quite a successful teacher.

BLOOMINGTON, ILLS., Sept. 18, 1882.

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.: Have taken Hall's Catarrh Cure. Had catarrh all my life; am 48 years old. Had asthma 19 years, and a dreadful cough for five years. Have taken everything; went to the Hot Springs; I have doctored with the doctors here; I have done nothing but take medicine for 19 years. When I commenced using Hall's Catarrh Cure I was almost dead. I sent for the doctor the day I got Hall's Catarrh Cure, and I told him that I would try your medicine. I was very bad. How I suffered for 9 years! I could hardly breathe at times. I saw Hall's Catarrh Cure advertised in the papers and commenced taking it. I would have been under the ground to-day if it had not been for that. I have not had one bad spell of coughing since. In breathing my head feels well and I am well. It has done me a thousand dollars worth of good. There are ten of my friends, on seeing what it had done for me, taking it, and it is helping them. I only wish that every one who has catarrh, asthma and a bad cough could see me, so that I could tell them all to take it. All that know me here know how I have suffered. (I have been here since 1858,) and say to me that "I am so glad you found something that could cure you." Everyone says, "How much better you look." The doctors say they are glad I found Hall's Catarrh Cure as they could not cure me.

I cannot express my gratitude to you for the good Hall's Catarrh Cure has done me. You can use as much of this letter as will do the afflicted good. Publish it to the whole world—it is all true and they should know it.

Announcement of Funeral.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Mrs. Joseph Wise took place at half-past eight o'clock last Saturday morning from the Roman Catholic church on Bishop street. The cause of her death was paralysis of the brain. The grief-sticken husband accompanied the remains from York to this place. Among the other mourners from that city are Mr. and Mrs. Allen, near relatives.

CHILDREN IN THE TEMPLE.

YOUNG FOLKS, MUSIC, FLOWERS, AND A PERFECT DAY UNITE IN PRAISE.

When the Divine Teacher was on earth He gave attention to children and uttered sentiments of beauty and impressiveness in reference to them. How appropriate then that they should take part in the universal praise which every heart owes to Him. This they can do on Children's Day.

Sunday was as near a perfect day as is often experienced in this latitude. The services in all the churches drew excellent congregations. In at least two of the churches in Bellefonte they were of unusual importance and consisted of exercises which had been specially prepared for the occasion. The origin of what is known as children's day is not very ancient. It originated, we believe, from a desire to train young people to preach the Gospel. For this reason, at its regular annual occurrence on the second Sunday in June offerings are made for education.

The exercises of the day which attracted the greatest attention were those of the afternoon in the Methodist and Presbyterian churches. At the regular Sunday school hour was thronged to a greater extent than comfort would permit, the Sunday-school teachers and pupils, almost four hundred in number, occupying the front pews. The members of the infant class were grouped on an elevated space in the "amen" corner. But the space was not sufficiently large to accommodate all of them, so the larger boys occupied a couple of pews in front. These young and bright buds of humanity were supplemented by a few tasteful clusters and bouquets of natural flowers and groups of potted plants in the front part of the church and around the pulpit enclosure, producing a fine effect.

It was after the usual hour when the services began, the opening selection being a voluntary by the choir. Then the school sang hymn No. 10, after which the Superintendent, H. H. Harshberger, Esq., offered a prayer.

"The administration of the sacrament of baptism was very solemnly performed, there being sixteen children and three adults. The exercises which followed were largely participated in by the pupils. John Keichline, Jr., delivered an address of welcome in good style. The infant class sang very pleasingly and also repeated the Apostles' creed and evinced quite a thorough knowledge of the Ten Commandments. Mrs. J. A. Woodcock is the teacher of this class, assisted by Mrs. Adj't General Hastings and Miss Fannie Twitmire.

An exercise of very great interest was one arranged from the words, "Faith, hope and charity." Twelve members of Miss Maggie Johnson's class were the participants. They went from their places to the pulpit platform, four at a time, repeating very appropriate sentiments in regard to these beautiful emblems of the Christian life.

A very pretty solo was sung by Miss Helen Hastings.

The recitation by Daisy Keichline was very excellently rendered.

The crown above the cross was a wonderfully attractive exercise. The bright young Misses who took part in it carried in their hands sheaves which they attached to a wooden cross until it was entirely covered, then another girl occupying an elevated position above the cross placed the crown upon it. Appropriate recitative exercises and singing explained the parts of this exercise.

The next recitation was on "Temperance," spoken by Eddie McGarvey.

Music by the choir, No. 207, followed this exercise, and Rev. Dr. Monroe, the pastor, explained the object of children's day and the especial appropriateness of an offering at this time. His remarks on this topic were further enforced by two recitations, one by Roland Curtin and one by Miss Josie Willard.

It was 4 o'clock when this was concluded, but still the interesting exercises held the vast audience. A responsive exercise was conducted by Miss Sallie Walkey and the members of her class.

Lorie Heisler delivered a recitation on "Truest Wisdom."

Singing by the infant class and by the school was followed by a recitation by Master Morton Smith.

The exercises entitled "The Christian Graces" was one of the most beautiful of the afternoon. Miss Nellie Kline's class, ten in number, were the young ladies who assembled on the platform. Each carried a shield and flowers either in wreaths, baskets or bouquets. On the shield was inscribed the particular grace exemplified. As each young lady advanced she attached her floral offering to the green covered cross. They were: Emma Herkheimer, "Faith;" Jennie Luckenbach, "Virtue;" Elsie Herkheimer, "Knowledge: Edith Cook, "Hope;" Lula Crider, "Love;" Anna Stott, "Temperence;" Stella Nolan, "Godliness;" Lydia A. Sheridan, "Patience;" Emma Holliday, "Experience;" Myra Holliday, "Charity."

Miss Twitmire's fine voice was heard in a solo "Saviour, Look on Me."

Seven girls drew lessons "From the Flowers."

The infant class gave a few Scripture quotations, hymn No. 294 was sung and Dr. Monroe closed with the benediction.

The church was again filled in the evening, a conversational experience meeting being held.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

also celebrated children's day in a very pleasing manner. The morning service had special reference to the event. The opening exercises were about as usual until just before the offering of the second prayer the members of the infant class taught by Mrs. Blanchard and Miss Emma Hughes, sang "Is my name written there?" After the second prayer and while the offering was being made a hymn, "Hear the pennies dropping," was rendered by Miss Chestie Krape's class. Rev. Dr. Laurie's sermon was on the subject of "Growing," and he used effective and original illustrations to show how children may grow up into Christ. His text was from the 4th chapter of Ephesians, 15th verse. His remarks to the children were in the form of an object lesson, being illustrated with several objects collected in the course of his experience and travels.

The floral decorations showed admirable taste. The plants and flowers were arranged around the pulpit platform. Two boxes of cut flowers, arranged by Harrisburg florists, were presented by Mrs. Beaver. Bouquets were placed on the radiators and at other appropriate places.

The Sunday-school met about two o'clock in the chapel and thence proceeded into the church. A very large and effective choir occupied the pulpit platform. The opening exercises were an arrangement by Rev. Dr. Warden, consisting of hymns, chants and responsive exercises. After the infant class had beautifully rendered "Joy Bells," Governor Beaver delivered an address lasting about twenty minutes, in which he expressed the most beautiful and forcible sentiments. He at once attracted undivided and sympathetic attention by relating his experience in a Sunday-school of 1500 members where he sometimes teaches a class as large as the entire Presbyterian Sunday-school of Bellefonte. But the difference is, he said, there I know only one or two people in the entire 1500, while here in the 300 or 400 pupils I know all except one or two. So no Sunday-school can be to me like the Presbyterian Sunday-school of Bellefonte. By illustrations drawn from Scripture he showed that each baptised child is a member of the church. He also drew pleasing lessons from the flowers. His address was followed by an offering and the services closed with appropriate devotional exercises.

Obituary.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bible, whose death occurred on Tuesday the 7th inst., was the wife of Mr. William Bible, Sr., of near Centre Hall, this county. Her maiden name was Bitner and although born in Dauphin county, she has been a resident of Centre county most all of her life. Mother Bible as she was familiarly called, received a severe shock of apoplexy about eight years ago, from the effects of which she never recovered, and since that time has been an invalid and a constant sufferer. She bore her affliction with that Christian forebearance which characterized her entire life. At an early age she became a member of the Reformed church and remained a conscientious and God-fearing Christian all her life.

Not only was she true and obedient to all the teachings of the church but her life was truly Christ-like. Her generosity knew no bounds, for the doors of her house were ever open to the homeless and friendless and her heart always willing to receive them.

The tired and hungry were always generously fed and cared for, and she was truly a mother to many a poor boy, who made his home with the family.

At the day of her death, her age was 76 years, 6 months and 21 days. She leaves a faithful and devoted husband, three daughters, two of whom were ever her constant attendants through all her declining years. Her oldest and only son was killed in the late war. The funeral occurred on Saturday morning, the 11th inst., at Centre Hall, and was very largely attended. Rev. Land, pastor of the Reformed church, preached the funeral sermon.

She rests from the care, the toil and strife,
And is blessed with the joys of eternal life;
She fought the fight assigned to this life
And dwells in the glorified haven of light.

Sentence Deferred.

Dietrick Lamade, one of the editors of Williamsport Grit, appeared in court Monday morning to receive sentence for his connection with the recent scandalous publication in his paper. Sentence was postponed until 2 o'clock. At that hour Lamade's attorney made application that sentence be deferred, alleging the sickness of Lamade's wife as a cause. This was granted and Mr. Lamade's bondsmen were telegraphed for. On their arrival that afternoon court again met and they entered into recognizance for his appearance on the fourth Monday in Augnst.

Huntingdon's car works which have been idle since 1883 are to be started up in 60 days by New York and Philadelphia capitalists, who are represented by President Corbin, of the Reading railroad, Alfred Sully, of New York and Charles Scott, of Philadelphia. The works start with an order for 3,000 cars.

CENTENNIAL OF METHODISM.

THE BEST THINGS ON THE PROGRAMME FOR THE FORTH-COMING CELEBRATION IN THIS COUNTY.

The following notes from the programme of exercises, incident to the celebration of the planting of Methodism in Centre county, we are enabled to give our readers, through the courtesy of Rev. D. S. Monroe, D. D., the pastor of the Bellefonte church, who has the celebration in charge:

The exercises will be held in the Bellefonte Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday, July 10.

At 8.30 a. m. a love feast will be held, Rev. George Leidy presiding.

At 10 a. m. there will be a church service, opening with devotional exercises. The sermon on that occasion will be delivered by Rev. Bishop E. G. Andrews, D. D., to be followed by the administration of the Lord's Supper.

In the afternoon at 2.30 o'clock there will be a Sunday-school service.

Addresses will be delivered by Adjutant General D. H. Hastings and W. F. Reeder, Esq. Other brief speeches will also be made.

In the evening at 7 o'clock a laymen's meeting will be held, Governor James A. Beaver presiding. After the usual devotional exercises, a History of Centre County Methodism will be read by Hon. J. Blair Linn and addresses by Rev. Geo. Leidy, Hon. John Patton and John G. Love, Esq.

As will be noticed by the above extracts, the services will be intensely interesting. It is expected that in the afternoon of the same day a celebration will be held in the church at Curtins Works, where Bishop Andrews will probably attend.

Re-unions at Gettysburg.

The passage of the bill giving each Regiment engaged in the battle of Gettysburg, $1,500 for the erection of a memorial tablet on the battlefield, was one of the grandest acts of the last Legislature.

The act provides that any command failing to act in the matter within twelve months, forfeits its right to do anything, but it does not lose its monument. A commission, appointed by the Governor, will then attend to its neglected work.

The fifth Penn'a Reserves desires to do its own work, and to that end, a Regimental re-union will be held at Gettysburg, in the Court House, on Saturday evening, July 9th, 1887, and every surviving member of the old Fifth, is expected to be present.

The roll will be called by companies. Send your name, if you can be present, to W. Hayes Grier, Harrisburg, who will prepare the roster. General Crawford will be with us, and General Fisher may.

ALFRED M. SMITH,
Late Lieut. Col. 5th Pa., Reserves.
WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., June 10th, 1887.

—One day last week Mr. W. H. Denlinger, of Philipsburg, and Miss Laura Wright, of Milesburg, were crossing Snow Shoe mountain. While riding happily along, thinking not of danger, a long, writhing form reared itself up in front of them. It was a huge black snake which at once offered battle. The reptile looked indeed exceedingly dangerous. It threw itself forward and endeavored to entwine around anyone who would approach. Sticks and stones did not seem to injure it any until one two pound rock, well aimed, took His Snakeship on the head and killed him dead. When the snake was examined and measured his proportions were found to be eleven feet in length and one foot in circumference.

The Coffee Boom Ended.

Lovers of the amber colored drink, coffee, will rejoice that its price will soon be reduced to the former rate. The "bulls" of New York have been forcing the price up to double its natural rate and some of them made large fortunes in consequence. Others who hoped to realize will be financially ruined, as the price has been forced down by a skillful movement of the "bears" and the coffee for which they paid a good price must now be sold at ordinary rates. No one can sympathise with men who would realize fortunes by creating an unnatural price for such a necessary article.

—On Monday some of the men on the furnace for the Valentine Ore Land Association ceased work in obedience to orders from the contractor. We do not know the reason. This is the second time that such orders have been issued, the difficulty being adjusted the first time. It is strange that, after working at very great expense, there should be any difficulty now when work can be prosecuted at minimum outlay.

—The funeral services over the remains of the late Mr. Agnew Sellers, of near Fillmore, occurred on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Noble, of Stormstown, officiated. The pall bearers were Messrs. Dorsey Green, John Reeser, Noah Musser, William Bodle, Frank P. Blair and J. Hogleman. The attendance was very large.

—The State College base ball nine expect to go to Lock Haven next Saturday to play a game with the nine of that place. The Lock Havenites, no matter how skilled they may be in the great National game, will find in these College students foemen worthy of their balls and bats.

A Hen's Eggs-centricities.

SHE LAYS SEVERAL QUEER EGGS AND THEN GIVES UP THE ATTEMPT IN DISGUST.

An event remarkable, unheard—of and startling has occurred on the premises of Mr. Henry Thompson, at Howard. Mr. Thompson owns a black hen of a very common species. She looks as if she could not possibly do anything out of the common course of occurrences. But she has distinguished herself in a way which merits that her name be handed down in the books on henology for many centuries.

This hen is one that has lived in this changeable world only since the Spring of '86. She is not therefore, a first-class Spring chicken though she might figure as such on a boarding house bill-of-fare. But she need not dread such a fate now, as she is worth her weight in gold.

Some time ago this hen began to act as if she was going to lay an egg. During two weeks, almost every day, she would go out on her nest which was in a dog kennel, cackling loudly, but the most faithful examination of the nest was not rewarded with the discovery of the desired hen fruit. One day, however, she laid a soft shell egg. The next day she laid one that had a hard shell, but lo! on examination it was discovered that there was a soft shell egg inside of this and still another within that. As if this was not sufficiently remarkable, she excelled the performance next day. She laid a fine looking hard shell egg. But on opening it there was found a soft shell egg, inside of that another similar egg, etc., until inside the tiny seventh egg was found a substance which looked as if it might be a great many eggs in one. Mr. Thompson tells us it looked like the eggs in a fish. This remarkable egg was laid about two weeks ago and since then the hen has not laid any more. She has probably given up the attempt in disgust, or, realizing that her efforts thus far, having won for her imperishable fame, she can rest on her laurels.

Flag Presentation.

At the recent regular meeting of K. R. Breeze Camp, No. 143, Sons of Veterans, held in their hall, a very beautiful and costly flag was received, the gift of Mr. Theodore Deschner. The Camp received the gift with free and forcible expressions of gratitude. The camp formally resolved that a vote of thanks be tendered Mr. Deschner for the appropriate and timely gift, also that the captain have a proper expression of gratitude published in the papers of the town. The members of the camp feel that they have cause to always remember the giver as one of the truest friends of that organization.

Mr. Zeb Bathurst, the Captain, considers that this should be an incentive to other sons of soldiers to join the order. The camp is increasing in numbers, strength and proficiency, but needs the hearty co-operation of all in the good work of fraternity and patriotism which it is seeking to accomplish.
